Wall Street Says He Was "Go-Between" for Steel Man and Mrs. Hayes

New York, June 12.—Daniel D. Wever of No. 2 Wall street acted as a "go-between" in financial deals between Mrs. Myrtle Bowman Hayes, Boston financier, and Charles M. Schwab, steel magnate, according to admissions made by Wever to Referee in Bankruptcy Charles A. Tipling.

Wever told Referee Tipling that he paid Mrs. Hayes large sums of money which came to him from Schwab through the latter's counsel, Attorney Willard A. Mitchell. Mitchell also admitted to Referee Tipling, under protest, that he had acted for Schwab in matters concerning Mrs. Hayes but refused to divulge the nature of the transactions.

BOSTON MAN WITNESS.

Wever said he had paid Mrs. Hayes a total of $15,850 at the request of Schwab's lawyer.

These revelations occured at the hearing on the bankruptcy petition of William C. Tobey, Long Island builder and contractor, who figured as president of Chatham Inc., which was Mrs. Hayes' company that was to build a fashionable hotel in Brookline, Mass.

The Tobey hearing was resumed in Long Island City. The witnesses were Attorney Willard A. Mitchell, counsel for Schwab, whose signature Mrs. Hayes is charged with forging to notes of large denomination; Wever, the confessed, "go-between" in the secret Hayes-Schwab money transactions, and Malcolm Jenney of Boston, who came to protect the interests of the Aberthaw Construction Company of Massachusetts.

Attorney George Edwin Joseph, representing creditors of Tobey, ask-

GARLICK ON BAIL, AIDS BANK

Maynard Bank Teller Pleads Not Guilty in Court; Restitution Is Planned

John Garlick, the young teller of the Maynard Trust Company who fled into Connecticut, then surrendered, pleaded not guilty in Concord District Court today to stealing $500 from the bank.

He was released in $5,000 bail till June 29. Then he went to the bank to help State banking auditors untangle the book snarl.

Garlick, represented by Attorney Robert J. Gallagher, waived reading of the charge. When the continuance he asked was granted two sureties went on his bail bond.

The defendant fiancee Mrs. Florence Booth Truiano went back to Maynard with Garlick and Gallagher.

PLAN RESTITUTION.

Attorney Gallagher said that arrangements were being made for restitution. He estimated that any shortage at the bank would run under $15,000.

Garlick is quoted as having said that D. L. O'Rourke, manager of the brokerage house of J. H. Dube at No. 68 Devonshire street, furnished him with $400 when he was in Boston last Friday and that this money enabled him to get out of the city.

O'Rourke denies that he gave Garlick a nickel for any such purpose. He denies, too, that he knew Garlick was a bank employe. O'Rourke says:

SHREWD AND LUCKY.

"If I had known Garlick was a $25-a-week bank employe I would not have done business with him. He represented himself to me as the son of a Maynard mill owner. I called him at his home under the names of 'James' Garlick and also at the bank. It seems to me that the bank folks and his family must have known that he played the stock market and hired machines for his girl friends.

"He was a brilliant boy and extremely lucky on the market. He al-

FIRES ENDANGER 5 TOWNS IN MAINE

Houlton, Me., June 12.—Forest fires raging in Aroostook County, threaten the destruction of five communities.

Women and children are fleeing over smoke-filled roads from Howe's Brook and Griswold while the men are making desperate attempts to save their homes.

At least six farm houses have been burned to the ground on West Ridge road, near Mapleton.

As far as is known there has been no loss of life though many of the firefighters have suffered intensely from suffocation and burns.

Sparks carried on the wings of a high wind have rained down on

SARAZEN SCORES 85 IN RAIN IN BRITISH GOLF CHAMPS

By ROBERT E. HARLOW

Troon, Scotland, June 12 (I.N.S.).—Playing in a rain, Gene Sarazen, American open champion, today earned in an 85 for his second round of qualifying play for the British open championship. With his score of 79 for yesterday, Sarazen has a total of 164 for the 36 holes, a score which it is believed will enable him to qualify.

Sarazen was among the first to get away. He shot his round today on the new course on which some of the highest scores of the tournament to date have been made.

A cold rain, driven in from the Firth of Clyde, was falling when the field teed off to determine which eighty of the 222 contestants shall fight it out for the final honors on Thursday and Friday. To the British and Scotch, accustomed to

FRENCH KILL 7 GERMANS; REFUSED TO OBEY ORDERS

Dusseldorf, June 12 (A. P.)—Six Germans were killed and three wounded by soldiers in Dortmund, says an official bulletin issued at French headquarters today. The statement asserted that a French patrol was threatened by a party of civilians in a street during the evening despite the regulation forbidding them to be aboard after 9 o'clock.

The citizens refused to disperse whereupon the soldiers after the usual warnings fired.

His companion, Abraham E. Johnson, forty-nine, of No. 10 Museum road, is under treatment at City Hospital for cuts and lacerations of the head and bruises of the body.

TYPHOON KILLS 13; SAMAR TOWNS HIT

Manila, June 12 (AP).—Thirteen lives were lost and a large area was laid waste by a typhoon on the Island of Samar, according to telegrams received today from constabulary headquarters there.

The reports said that in seven towns 85 per cent. of the houses were blown down, and that the homeless thousands were threatened with famine.

GRAND JURY PROBE IS DEMANDED

Parents of Wounded Girl Want Policeman Arrested if Facts Warrant Such Action

motor party of boys and girls shot up by Police Chief John E. Hayes of Beverly admitted today that "some of us had a few drinks" prior to the shooting.

He said this in his own story to the Boston American, the first account he has given.

But he denied that any of the three girls had a drop or that any of the three boys was under influence of liquor. Winston and Miss Evelyn Spinney are the two wounded by the chief's bullets.

Beverly simmered today with indignation that first bullet over at the abbermanic investigation of the shooting.

State police were called upon to drive away a crowd of riotous Beverly citizens from the City Hall during the hectic session.

Attorney Edward Underwood, counsel for the wounded Spinney girl's family, says he will demand grand jury investigation and criminal indictment of some Beverly policemen.

LARKIN EXPELLED AS LABOR SECRETARY

Dublin, June 12 (By International News Service).—Officials of the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union today expelled James Larkin from the secretaryship. They applied to the courts for a writ to eject Larkin and his colleagues from "Liberty Hall," which they seized yesterday. The writ was granted. Larkin was recently deported from the United States.

MOTORCYCLIST HURLED TO GROUND; RIBS BROKEN

In order to avoid an automobile at Dudley and Washington streets, Roxbury, Vincent G. Farrell, twenty-four years old, of No. 23 Wayland street, Dorchester, turned his motorcycle toward the sidewalk. He was hurled several feet when it struck the curbing and suffered several broken ribs. A passing autoist took him to the City Hospital.

CHILD BITTEN BY DOG; ATTACKED IN APARTMENTS

Ida, the eleven-year-old daughter of Mrs. Nellie Laracy of No. 2 Webster place, East Boston, was attacked by a dog in an apartment house in the rear of No. 216 Marginal street and is confined to her home.

The child's legs were badly lacerated from the knees down. She was rushed to the East Boston Relief Hospital, where the wounds were cauterized.

The dog, owned by Frank Cavaspero, who lives in the Margaret street apartment, was taken to the Animal Rescue League house on Carver street for an examination.

WOMAN SLAYER NOT GUILTY; MENTAL TEST FOR MOTHER

Worcester, June 12.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Annie Di Pari, charged with the murder of Salvatore Martucci, gunman, today handed Judge Nelson P. Brown a verdict of not guilty, by reason of insanity. The defence proved that Mrs. Di Pari shot and killed Martucci in a moment of distraction, when he was using pressure on her to go to Springfield as a white slave to earn money to remove a scar on his face. Mrs. Di Pari is twenty-three years old and the mother of four children.

Mrs. Di Pari was ordered returned to jail where she will be examined as to her sanity.

INN WHERE GIRLS SMOKED IS CLOSED

Northampton, June 12.—Rose Tree Inn on Bridge street, a resort of Smith College girls, operated for years by Mme. A. De Naucaze, descendant of French nobility, has been forced to close, because Smith College forbade the girls patronizing the place, under threat of expulsion.

The faculty claimed that the college maids drank and smoked there with Amherst College youths.

The girls indignantly declare that Mme. De Naucaze, while permitting girl patrons to smoke, allowed no liquor in her inn.

Kansas City—With the raging waters receding the property damage will run into millions, but six lives seemed to be the complete toll claimed by the flood. Damage in Arkansas City was estimated today at approximately $3,000,000, while that at Winfield probably will reach $1,500,000.

YOUTH WOUNDED IN BEVERLY SHOOTING ADMITS DRINKING

PARENTS DEMAND GRAND JURY PROBE OF CASE

ward F. Flynn of Lynn says he will seek criminal indictment if he finds the facts warrant it.

Information is set at all settled by claims of Chief Hayes that there was no intention to shoot anybody or by his further claim that the condemnation is purely political "hullabaloo."

Mayor Harold Whittemore said today:

"The hysteria which has resulted from this unfortunate accident is the result of an attempt on the part of a few men to make this affair redound to their political credit. I am asked by some to remove Chief Hayes. Neither his innocence or his guilt has been established to the satisfaction of any fair minded person. This is not the time for such action.

"The propaganda put forth by Beverly political ventures is not the judge speaking law in a Massachusetts court. I shall let the court decide the case.

FIGHTING POLITICIANS.

"My battle is not against the wounded young people. I am fighting and have been fighting since I assumed office, the most powerful, unprincipled group of politicians this city has ever seen."

President Edward Thompson, of the board of aldermen, said he has learned that other persons riding in automobiles have been stopped by shots fired in the air by Beverly policemen. He said that further action in the present case must from Lynn.

"Mayor Whittemore is all wrong when he says any of us were under the influence of liquor," Winston said. "He named me especially I am told. The hospital authorities can tell that he is wrong.

AMITS FEW DRINKS.

"Some of us had a few drinks. Not one of the three girls in the party drank a drop. What we did drink we took in a dare-devil way, without thinking, and we certainly did not set out to get drunk and put on a wild night.

"The girls are models of respectability and I assure the fellows' reputations speak for themselves. All of us were out for a church party.

"We spent most of Saturday evening at the Ocean House, where the church dance was taking place. The reason we left to go elsewhere was that it was too crowded to have a very good time.

HEARD NO SIGNAL.

"We went from there over to Lakecroft, a roadhouse on Chebacco Lake, in Essex, near Hamilton. Frank Bemis drove us over there. It is true he had no driver's license with him, but he has a license at home, and that stamps him as a capable operator. There was a license in the car. Christianson had one with him.

"At Lakecroft, we danced. We had a few drinks, not all of us, but myself and at least one other. We had arrived there at quarter of twelve.

"We headed straight back toward Lynn. It certainly was time to go home and we were going there. We saw no traffic officers. We heard no signal.

"Suddenly a car drew alongside. It was not a police car. Chief Hayes fired a shot. Of course, we did not know until a few minutes afterward who he was. I heard the bark of a gun and we came to a stop.

"Miss Spinney shouted, 'I am shot.' Then I started to stand up and my right knee gave way beneath me."

JEERED AT ALDERMEN.

At the Beverly aldermanic session citizens jammed the City Hall to the doors. Throughout the meeting they jeered and taunted the police and their champion, Alderman Abraham Glovsky.

Angry persons threatened Glovsky with violence, and on more than one occasion invited him to "come outside and it won't take long to settle this matter."

Two resolutions were proposed to the Board of Aldermen.

1. Resolved: that the District Attorney be requested to make a full investigation of the police affairs of the City of Beverly, and that pending such investigation, the Governor be requested to appoint a commission of a member of the State Police Department to assume control of the police department.

2. Resolved: that His Honor the Mayor be requested to remove Chief of Police John E. Hayes, pending a complete investigation of the incident of the police department.

President Edward Thompson and Aldermen Donald H. Bell and Robert H. Lawson voted for the adoption of the resolutions.

GLOVSKY DEFENDS POLICE.

Alderman Abraham Glovsky, an attorney, led the faction in support of the police department. Aldermen John C. Wilson and Joseph Drugan voted with him.

SCORE DAUBED ON LYNN SCHOOL

"Classical High 3—English High 2."

This legend, daubed in painted letters 15 inches high, on the concrete walls and on the doors of the Lynn English High School gymnasium, was discovered today, and police will question the "English" baseball adherents believed to be guilty of the bold invasion of the rival institution.

For the first time in three years Lynn English high's belt nine went down to defeat yesterday at Little River park when the aggregation wearing Classical colors panned a three to two defeat on the North Shore league champions.

Local-Lafs EDITED BY The BOSTON AMERICAN

Here Is My Joke for the Screen

(Not to be more than 30 words long)

Name .....

Address .....

Moving Picture Theatre I attend .....

Fifteen cash prizes for best "Local-Lafs" every week, $5, $3, $2 and twelve of $1. Prize winners to be shown every week, with names and addresses of senders, at local moving picture houses. Address all communications to LOCAL-LAFS EDITOR, Boston American, No. 80 Summer Street, Boston.

CONVERT THE FAMILY FUN TO 'LOCAL LAFS' IN MOVIES

Have you a funny wife?

Or husband?

How about your clever boy or girl? Don't their childish views and way of talking make you laugh?

We thought so. Then make Local-Lafs out of family fun and send them to Local-Lafs Editor of the Boston American.

For the Boston American's Local-Lafs—successors to the Whimsical Nifties—are to be shown at moving picture houses on a special film.

There is money in it for the best ones and moving picture fame for the senders.

If your Local-Laf is one of the fifteen best of the week it will be included in the Local-Lafs film and you will receive double return. You will receive a cash prize and your name will be put on the film with your Local-Laf.

You won't have to tell the neighbors how witty you are. They will read it on the film. The cash prizes are:

First prize—Five dollars.
Second Prize—Three dollars.
Third Prize—Two dollars.
Twelve next best—One dollar each.

The American, you recall, has been printing some Nifties daily, paying one dollar for all printed. Some Local-Lafs will be printed daily, with one dollar paid for each.

SEE THEM AT MOVIES.

But none of the fifteen Local-Lafs selected for the movie screen and for the weekly cash payments will be printed in the American. You will have to go to your movie theatre to to see those.

In looking over contributions today the Local-Lafs Editor picked up one from Frank J. Forlorney of No. 4 East Beacon street, Providence, R. I. It is too long for a Local-Laf, which is limited to thirty words. But it gets into the print column for a dollar award. It runs:

"Where can a man buy a cap for his knee?
Or a key to the lock of his hair?
Can his eyes be called an academy
Because there are pupils there?
In the crown of his head what gems are found?
Who travels the bridge of his nose?
Can he use, when shingling the roof of his mouth,
The nails on the end of his toes?
Can the crook of his elbow be sent to jail?
And, if so, what did he do?
How does he sharpen his shoulder blades?
I'm hanged if I know, do you?

ALMOST MADE IT

Here's one that almost made the screen. Anyhow, it rates a dollar in the daily printed selections:

"What is the difference between a farmer and a crook?"

Answer—The farmer tills and tills; the crook lands in the hill."

ANNA KELLY.

No. 14 Haverford street, J. P.

Miss Elizabeth Brown of No. 16 Orange street, Newburyport, sends in cute adaptation of an old verse. It's over-long for the film, but it is printed for a dollar prize:

"There was a man in our town
Much wiser than his sires.
He ran into a bramble bush
And punctured all his tires,
And, when he saw his tires were wrecked,
With all his might and main,
He ran into a rubber plant
And had them fixed again."

FACE MAKING REEL.

In order to introduce the idea to the moving picture public a face-making reel will be unwound at the picture theatres, showing "Local-Lafs" but without any names or cash awards. This face-making reel will start showing Sunday, June 17.

Meanwhile the "Local Lafs" sent to the American will be sifted for the first showing of the best fifteen, which will begin the following Sunday, June 24.

The pace-maker film, showing you the idea, will begin at the following theatres on the following dates:

Gordon's Olympia, Washington street, starts Sunday, June 17.

Gordon's Scollay Square Olympia, starts Sunday, June 17.

Gordon's Capitol, Commonwealth avenue, starts Sunday, June 24.

Gordon's Central Square, Cambridge, starts Sunday, June 24.

Gordon's Strand, Upham's Corner, starts Sunday, July 1.

Gordon's Codman Square, Dorchester, starts Sunday, July 1.

Gordon's Olympia, Chelsea, starts Thursday, July 5.

Gordon's Harvard Theatre, North Cambridge, starts Thursday, July 5.

The "Local-Lafs" film is being distributed by Independent Films, Inc., of No. 16 Piedmont street, Boston.

The "American prints a "Local-Lafs" coupon which may be used. Use of this coupon is recommended but is not obligatory.

Another Revolution
Smith Versus Bryan
No Logical Religion
"If I Were President"

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1923 Star Co.

REVOLUTION in Bulgaria. The King sides with the revolutionists, as Italy's King sided with Mussolini.

Kings, royal in inheritance, royal in cash, do not object to revolutions, when made in their interest by conservatives. But a wise king would fear any revolution. One kind breeds the other.

THESE ARE happy days for W. G. McAdoo. Present explosions in the Democratic party are all good explosions for him.

First came the World Court, which tied the Republicans up with a second-class League of Nations, and took one heavy curse from Mr. McAdoo, in case he should run.

NOW AL SMITH, Governor of New York, and William Jennings Bryan, protector of prohibition, are fighting. That eliminates Mr. Smith as a candidate.

One thing Mr. Bryan can do—he can prevent a nomination by the Democratic convention.

To go into a Democratic convention to fight Bryan is like going into a Florida swamp to fight alligators. That's not the place to fight them.

MOSES STEINBERG invents a new religion, and, says he, it is "the only religion appealing solely to man's reason and capacity to understand and not at all to his capacity to believe."

That is exactly the kind of religion that nobody wants. Man seeks in religion answers to questions that can be answered, only by faith.

MOHAMMED'S ANGEL, with the huge face, eyes set miles apart, or the Christian picture of Elijah travelling up to heaven in a chariot of fire, plus a simple explanation of how the earth and the creatures on it were made—that is what the simple human brain requires.

We "long to know the unknowable and unscrew the inscrutable." Nobody wants a logical religion.

MANY MEN go to sleep mapping out what they would do "if I were President." Henry Ford gives part of his plan: If he were President he would "stop foolish parading by the army and foolish social waste of time by the navy." He would put army and navy to work chasing bootleggers.

SUCH A GOOD manufacturer should have better use for the army and navy.

If John D. Rockefeller were thirty years younger and had the chance, he would make the navy self-supporting, and it would be the biggest in the world by a thousand per cent. And he would make the army self-supporting digging canals, irrigating deserts and draining marshes, and he would double and treble army pay.

There are more important things to be done, even than hunting bootleggers.

CLERGYMEN of fifteen different kinds ask President Harding to get to work in the Near East and settle questions there, relieving the afflicted, etc. It's a pious suggestion, but there is a great deal to be done in the much "nearer" United States.

The right kind of thinking is done by Lloyd George, who says: "We spent $50,000,000,000 in the last war and have not spent a thousandth part of that sum since the country came into existence, remedying conditions in the slums, where multitudes of Britishers are living under conditions perfectly infamous."

THIS COUNTRY spent a great deal more than fifty thousand million dollars in that war, including bad loans to Europe. It is about time to begin spending our money not in the Near East, but near home.

SAMUEL GOMPERS denounces the effort to break up unions in the textile industry in Massachusetts.

Frank Munsey's New York Herald says the open shop is making gains all over the country to the tune of a half a million workers in a year.

When jobs are scarce and pay is low, men, frightened, stick together and pay their dues. When jobs are plentiful and pay is high, the unions suffer. Such is human nature and human folly.

BEULAH CROKER POSED AS WIFE, SAYS WITNESS

Dublin, June 12 (I.N.S.).—The biggest sensation of the Croker will contest was sprung today when Richard Davies of Northampton, Mass., swore on the witness-stand that Mrs. Bula Croker, widow of the late Richard Croker, former leader of Tammany in New York, had posed as the wife of Guy Marone while living in his house.

According to allegations made by Croker's children by his first marriage, Mrs. Bula Croker married Marone and was not divorced from him when she married Richard Croker in New York in 1914.

Davies said Marone rented a room from him and lived there for three years. In 1911 he brought a woman to the house and introduced her as his wife. They occupied the same room. The couple seemed very loving, Davies said, and called each other "husband" and "wife." Davies identified Mrs. Bula Croker as the woman.

Mrs. Mary Croker, wife of Richard Croker, Jr., declared that she tried to reconcile the elder Croker with his children, but was prevented by Bula Croker, his second wife.

According to the witness, Mrs. Bula Croker alleged that Richard, the younger, obtained $75,000 annually from his father that the latter did not want to give up. Mrs. Mary Croker denied that her husband got this money, also, she denied threatening Mrs. Bula Croker.

Howard Croker, another son, denied he had tried to get his sister Florence to join him in contesting the former Tammany chief's will. Later he denied he attempted to influence witness at Northampton, Mass., to testify against Mrs. Bula Croker.

DOROTHY CLARK LOVE SUIT DROPPED

Los Angeles, June 12.—Dorothy Clark, the dancer, formerly of Boston, has made a settlement with Herbert Rawlinson.

At least this was indicated here, where the girl's suit against the film star was dismissed when it was called by Judge L. Perry Wood.

Miss Clark, through her mother, as guardian, had sued for $200,000, charging Rawlinson with attacking her in New York City on October 15, 1920, when she was fifteen years old.

The case came to trial here last February, but the proceedings were terminated when it was announced a settlement out of court was in prospect. The jury was dismissed and the hearing continued until such time as the parties to the action should announce their inability to arrive at an agreement.

Rawlinson, throughout, has maintained his innocence.

CAPTIVES ARE SET FREE BY CHINESE

Tsao Chuang, June 12 (A. P.).—Eight captives, the last of the foreigners kidnaped by Chinese bandits who held up the Shanghai-Peking express near Suchow, May 6, and held at the Paotzuku Mountain headquarters of the outlaws since that time, were released today.

COSTLY WAR PLANT SOLD FOR $115,000

Richmond, Va., June 12.—Erected during the World War at an estimated cost of $2,000,000, the Seven Pines Ordnance Depot, embracing 1,268 acres of land and 100 buildings, was sold at auction today for $115,000. The Virginia Iron & Metal Company was the purchaser. The plant was erected by the Dupont interests, and later passed to government control.

'PRETTIEST GIRL' SUES YOUNG METZ

Son of Ex-Millionaire Auto Man Accused by Beauty He Wed During War

Private detectives employed by Mrs. Mildred Whalley Metz, the "prettiest girl in Auburn, N. Y.," testified that they saw her husband, C. Walter Metz, son of the Waltham automobile manufacturer, frolic with other women at a gay apartment house party. Hence her suit for divorce on grounds of alleged unfaithfulness.

The detectives, George Wilbur and James Graham, declared they watched Metz enter an apartment hotel on South Salina street, Syracuse, N. Y., with another man and two girls. They claimed they found the former Waltham millionaire in a compromising position when they entered the suite.

CLASHES MARK TRIAL.

These statements aroused the ire of the young husband and the hearing, held by Judge Hull Greenfield, referee, in Cayuga County Court, Auburn, N. Y., was marked by bitter clashes.

Contradicting the testimony of the detectives, Metz, Mr. and Mrs. Howard K. Hull and her daughter, Dolight, testified that on the night in question, Jan. 16, 1922, Metz had been sipping "ginger tea" at the Hull home, No. 709 South avenue, Syracuse, where he was boarding, in the hope of recovering from illness.

After hearing masses of contradictory testimony Judge Greenfield reserved decision. Until this becomes known Metz must pay his wife $15 a week alimony. At a previous hearing she had asked for $100 a week.

ACCUSES HIS WIFE.

A stir was caused in the court, packed with the society folk of Auburn, when Benjamin Shove, counsel for Metz, referred to his blond, bobbed-haired wife as "a little gold digger who deserted her husband in his hour of trouble when his money was gone."

Money, according to Shove, was the reason Mrs. Metz spurned her husband, for when he was financially unable to gratify all her "expensive whims," her love cooled.

Charles Metz, the youth's father, made millions through the manufacture of the Metz car and aeroplanes during the war. His fortune slipped away following the war.

ROMANCE OF THE WAR.

C. Walter Metz, a graduate of Technology, was commissioned a second lieutenant and assigned to inspection work among Central New York factories, because of his technical training and general knowledge.

It was while he was attending a Red Cross fete that he met Miss Whalley, a favorite at Cornell and Syracuse University frolicking dances. They were wed two months after the war closed. She lived in Auburn.

AUTO BADLY HURTS NO. WEYMOUTH MAN

Edward W. Cook of South Weymouth was run over today by a motor car on Bridge street in that town and is at the Weymouth Hospital suffering from a compound fracture of the right arm, a badly injured knee, which may be fractured, numerous cuts and bruises and possible internal injuries. He was crossing the street to board a car when the auto struck him.

U. S. Plans to Collect $360,000,000 in Back Taxes

Washington, June 12.—Collection of back taxes by the Treasury Department during the present fiscal year will total $360,000,000 or more, according to the latest available figures.

These are payments due to the government for the tax years 1919, 1920 and 1921.

JITNEY PLAYERS TO TOUR N. E. LIKE ACTORS OF OLD

New York, June 12 (C.N.S.).—With an auto truck for a stage and a grassy roadside or a town square for a theatre, a group of performers known as the Jitney Players will begin on July 4 a tour of the New England States. Formed and financed by Hamlett Cheney, son of Horace B. Cheney of New York, the little company will travel from town to town like the minor players.

Three cars will complete the requirements.

HAS RIGHT TO LOAF, SON TELLS FATHER

Providence, June 12.—Lorenzo Paglia, twenty-two, of No. 150 Elmdale street, was sent to jail for three months for ordering his father, Louis of 3161, which had been toted away in a bed mattress. Paglia said his son refused to work and roamed the streets, declaring he was urged to support him for life, and gets him all the money he wanted to spend, that it was the true American fashion.

MRS. HOLLIS PROVES SHE IS UNKNOWN IN BEACON HILL'S BOHEMIA

GREETED AS STRANGER IN TEA ROOMS

Accused Society Woman Tours Resorts in Quest of Mysterious Namesake

The Boston American today prints the third instalment of the exclusive story of the strange case of Mrs. W. Chalmer Hollis, the former Newton society matron, who was arrested on charges of larceny through worthless checks. Accompanied by a Boston American reporter, Mrs. Hollis toured the Beacon Hill tea rooms in quest of a "Mrs. Hollis," who has posed as the Newton woman. Her experiences follow:

By MRS. W. T. HOLLIS.
(Copyright, Boston American).

More intrigue—

More mystery—

Who is the woman who went to Boston's Bohemia and there was known as Mrs. Hollis?

I have been accused of being a frequent visitor to the tea rooms of Beacon Hill. I have been proclaimed a disciple of ruthlessness, a supporter of struggling artists and writers.

Still when I went to The Brick Oven, The Gray House, Coffee Shop, Four Steps Down and those other places smuggling in odd corners of the West End no one knew me.

Mrs. W. Thatcher Hollis

NO ONE KNEW ME.

I enquired for Mrs. Hollis. I gained evasive answers in some places and in others I found no one who knew her.

I was supposed to be a friend of a former clergyman, Mr. George Sillis. He declared he did not know me.

I was supposed to be a personal friend and associate of Elliot Paul, the writer. Persons living in his rooming house did not know me. I never heard of him before all these accusations and lies were broadcast all about me.

Enemies tried to link me with the little theater some of these artists are building in a barn on Joy street. When I went there one of the leading spirits, Miss Florence Murray, did not know who I was until I made known my identity, for did her bobbed-haired friend, Marcia Marcin, who comes from New York and who writes.

PESTERED AT HOME.

Everywhere it was the same story. I had witnesses who can bear me out. I was unknown. All I had heard my name, however, and the stories circulated about me.

How did those tales get around? Who spread them? Who has a decided interest in continuing to point to me as the Bohemian Mrs. Hollis, the gay and originality matron with the indifferent and frivolous views?

It is just one more of the many mysterious things that have happened the past few weeks.

Perhaps those who told here and there about Mrs. Hollis being so Bohemian may know who has kept me awake at unconventional hours of the night by ringing my door bell.

When I answered, thinking perhaps someone in my family was sick, I was told a "friend wishes to see you."

TOLD MOTHER LIES.

Persecution—certainly. I well know the meaning of it.

Even my mother, who has just come from California to be with me during my trouble, was told how I had been flitting about from tea room to tea room with a pack of young men and women.

When I went into the Gray House Coffee Shop I asked for the proprietor, a Miss Caroline Carter. She was amazed when I told her who I was and what I wanted.

Her greeting to me was: "Why I have never seen you before to my knowledge."

Still I learned that some woman has used my name. Why?

I found that a grayish-haired woman had been around Beacon Hill and that she was introduced as Mrs. Hollis.

Of course, it is possible that there may be another Mrs. Hollis and that this was a case of mistaken identity.

If that is so, then how did it come about this other Mrs. Hollis has been referred to everywhere as "the Mrs. Hollis who did so much for Mr. LeDoux's slaves?"

Prize Girl Student Never Danced or Saw Movie

New York, June 12—Ella Hediger never went to the movies, theatres, dances or parties. Swimming was her only recreation. She worked at night and on holidays in a small candy store.

And today she is the pride of New York University and of the Bellevue Hospital medical corps. She leads six young women—the first in the history of the associated colleges—who will receive degrees of M. D. at graduation.

GRISWOLD WEDS MISS PARKMAN

Miss Penelope Parkman, president of the Vincent Club, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Parkman of No. 30 Commonwealth avenue, and Roger Griswold, son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Griswold of No. 26 West Cedar St., were married. The ceremony was performed at Trinity Church, Rev. Malcolm E. Peabody of Lawrence, a brother-in-law of the bride officiated, assisted by Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, rector of Trinity.

MUST CARRY OUT SHIP DRY LAW

Washington, June 12—Customs officers today had definite instructions from the Treasury bureau regulations, carrying out the recent Supreme Court decision barring beverage liquor from the territorial waters of the United States, are to be strictly enforced.

Issuance of the instructions followed suggestions to the Treasury by the French government, through its Embassy here, that, inasmuch as the liner France, in New York Harbor, had left her home port prior to June 10, the effective date of the regulations, they should not apply to prevent issuance of wine rations to the crew.

LEVIATHAN CREW IS NOT QUITTING

Indignant over all-sorts propaganda stories of strikes and dissensions among the crew of the S. S. Leviathan, a committee named by the men of the giant liner issued today a statement flaying one "J. Bell," who quit the vessel after three days aboard as a steward's assistant.

"Insult and injury has been done the American flag and the American merchant marine as a result of this man's false claims. A good and clean spirit of co-operation and comradeship prevails among the crew, and J. Bell's stories are diabolical lies and favoritisms are false and untrue," the statement reads.

"BLACK-HOODED TERROR" BEATS INFORMERS

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 12—The intensive campaign waged in the Pittsburgh district against bootleggers and recently extended to fashionable roadhouses has resulted in a new terrorist organization for reprisal purposes.

County authorities have discovered the existence of the "Moonshine Men," said to be operating for the protection of bootleggers and moonshiners.

The first victims of the organization's activities, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Gardaski, of Imperial, a suburb, were dragged from their beds by a band of black hooded and robed men, tied to trees in a nearby woods and beaten with clubs, they told officers, because they had ignored a warning not to testify in liquor cases. Mrs. Gardaski is under the care of a physician.

CAMPAIGN OF TERRORISM.

Three men were arrested last night in connection with the attack, Gardaski telling officers he recognized them as leaders of the hooded band.

Literature found in their possession is said by authorities to indicate a general campaign of terrorism is being planned in an attempt to protect moonshiners and to bring about a general fear of manufacturers of illicit liquor.

Prohibition agents and State police, acting under the new Pennsylvania enforcement measure, have been unusually active recently, raids being daily occurrences. A score of automobiles were stopped a few nights ago at a fashionable roadhouse and liquor seized from virtually all of them, according to group head, John S. Pyle, who indicated that the action marked a new move in the extension of prohibition enforcement to "bring your own liquor" parties.

"MOONSHINE" HARMONY.

Mr. and Mrs. Gardaski were leaders in a movement to suppress bootlegging in their neighborhood, telling authorities they had warned all still proprietors to cease operations, and when they failed to do so sent word to Federal prohibition headquarters that resulted in a general raid being made.

Before hearings were held, Gardaski declared, a note was delivered to his home bearing the initials of "Moonshine" and warning the couple if they valued their lives not to give testimony against those arrested.

Disregarding the warning, they both appeared at the hearing and upon their testimony all were held for court.

TELLS OF HAYES DEALS

ed Wever if he knew Charles M. Schwab.

"I have met Mr. Schwab three times," replied Wever.

Q—Do you know Mrs. Hayes? A—Yes.

SUIT FOR LACK OF FEE.

Q—How did you meet Mrs. Hayes?

A—Mr. Mitchell told me Mrs Hayes was interested in financing a hotel proposition, that he could not represent her and that there might be something in it for me. Mrs. Hayes came to my office on Oct. 20, 1919. I acted as Mrs. Hayes' attorney until June, 1920. I quit because I could not get any more pay for my services. In June, 1922, Mrs. Hayes again came to see me and enlisted my services in connection with the Chatham, Inc., venture.

"On Oct. 26, 1922, Mr. Mitchell sent me his check for $650," Wever testified, "with a letter saying it was a present from to me. He called me on the telephone later and explained it was given to me for a loan to Mrs. Hayes which he did not wish to make personally.

"There was a similar transaction on November 10 of the same year for $5,000; on November 14 for $8,000; on November 24 for $2,500, and on November 29 for $1,200."

These checks were produced and marked for exhibit.

NOTES AS SECURITY.

Payment of these checks he made to Mrs. Hayes directly, Wever said, and her promissory notes were taken as security, although no demand was ever made on her to meet these notes.

"Did he tell you any reason for making these loans for him?" asked Joseph.

"No, sir."

"I believe you said Mr. Mitchell referred Mrs. Hayes to you, telling you he could not act for her. Did he tell you why he could not act for her?"

"No."

Q—Has he ever told you? A—No. I never asked questions when Mr. Mitchell asked me to do anything—I did it."

Q—You've never asked him Mitchell why he couched those letters in that form? A—No, sir.

Q—Although he made those letters look like those loans were made to you at your request? A—No, sir.

Q—And I understand you to say that you had never inquired of him to find out the purpose of these transactions? A—No, sir.

Q—Was the matter of these loans brought to her (Mrs. Hayes') attention by you? A—I think she knew the money was going to be in my office.

Q—On the day after you received a letter from Mr. Mitchell, she appeared in your office and you knew what she was there for and gave her the money. Didn't you think it strange that Mr. Mitchell still kept up the fiction?

Q—Did Mr. Mitchell ever advise you in connection with these transactions with Mrs. Hayes that Mr. Schwab was connected in the matter? A—No.

Q—Did you know who advanced the money? A—No.

Q—Nothing was suggested to put you to the trouble inquiry by Mr. Mitchell's telling you he could not appear for Mrs. Hayes, and then his making these loans in this way? A.—No.

Wever told the referee that he had represented Mrs. Hayes for purposes of negotiation conferences with Schwab which preceded his open disavowal of the validity of the now famous signatures. Mrs. Hayes confessed to writing them, Wever said.

Q—As her attorney, did you wish her to state that she had forged those notes? A—I wished her to tell the truth.

Wever said he had warned Mrs. Hayes that anything she said might be used against her.

WANTED A NEW LOAN.

Q—Did you hear Mrs. Hayes say if it would help Mr. Schwab she would confess she signed the notes? A—No, sir.

Q—You won't deny that Mr. Schwab said "Before I do anything that woman, or Mrs. Hayes, must say I didn't sign those notes?" A.—I can't remember.

Mitchell testified to an additional $3,000 to the generous monetary aid advanced by him to Mrs. Hayes, producing and identifying as his own a check he gave Mrs. Hayes directly.

"On or about October, 1922, Mrs. Hayes came to me and stated she wanted to borrow money for a certain purpose, didn't want to borrow it from me directly, but wanted to borrow it from Wever—" the vagaries of the weather in this section, the rain appeared to be without influence, but the effect on the Americans is expected to prove disastrous to their chances of victory.

SARAZEN MAKES 85 IN RAIN

Sarazen had considerable trouble with his driving and putting. He bunkered on the second drive and took a five to reach the green. On the round, he found eight bunkers and missed several easy putts. His card was:

Out .....584 355 445—43
In .....360 544 455—42—85

Leo Diegel of Washington, the second American to come in, returned a score of 82, which gave him a total of 159 for the two days. Diegel got into the rough on the very first two holes, but thereafter managed to have clear going. His cards:

Out ..... 6 7 4 4 4 5 5 5 5—43
In ..... 5 5 6 4 3 5 4 4 5—38—81

James Braid, the venerable Britain, who led the field yesterday with a 73, came back with a fine 77 today, giving him a total of 149.

Jean Gassiat, the main French reliance, took 80 for the course, bringing his total score to 153. His countryman, Abbey Boomer, retrieved some ground lost yesterday with a 78, making his total 169. De La Torre, the Spaniard, had a total score of 154 and Ockendon, 155.

The rain ceased falling and the weather moderated a bit in the early afternoon.

The American hopes soared when Johnny Farrell, the Quaker Ridge, N. Y., professional, came in with a 77, giving him a total of 157. Farrell played a remarkable game, being in trouble only once, on the second, when he topped his drive, causing him to take a 7—. His second round card follows:

Out ..... 4 7 4 4 4 4 4 4 5—40
In ..... 4 5 4 4 3 4 4 5—37—77

W. C. Sherwood of Memphis, Tenn., had a ragged time of it, taking 85 for the second round, making his two-day total 164.

Charles Hoffner's card today was 82, giving him a total of 161. Leo Diegel also made the round in 82 for a total of 159. Alex Herd scored 79, against his 77 yesterday, for a total of 156.

Jim Barnes, former American open title holder, duplicated his score of yesterday, turning in another 80 for a total of 160. His second round card:

Out .....5 5 3 4 5 4 4 4 4—38
In .....4 4 5 6 4 5 4 4 6—42—80

Tommy Armour, also on the American team, returned an 84, bringing his score to 162.

Joe Kirkwood, a member of the American team, seemed certain of qualifying when he returned a 76 for a total of 152. Hilvers finished with a total of 157; Harry Vardon with 163; Massy with 163, and Roger Wethered, the British amateur champion, with 167.

5 MAINE TOWNS IN FIRE PERIL

Houlton and other centres, causing firemen to wet down roofs.

A pall of smoke hangs low over the county, dimming the sun until there is a sickly yellowish light.

The flames are now so close to Howe's Brook and Griswold that the residents have abandoned all hope of saving their homes unless a heavy rain falls suddenly.

Every available horse and vehicle has been pressed in service to carry household effects to safety and the caravans are being manned by the women and children old enough to help.

The fire is within two miles of Mapleton, a community of about 1800, and less than three miles from Smyrna, a place of about 2000 inhabitants.

Reports from Monticello and Littleton state that both these communities are in danger and that all the men available have gone to the forests to fight the flames.

It is said that more than 100 distinct fires are raging in different parts of the county.

DORCHESTER FAMILY OF SEVEN IS EVICTED BY FORCE FROM HOME

FURNITURE CARTED AWAY

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Dougan Declare All Landlords Bar Children

Evicted from their home by force, their furniture and household goods taken away to a storage house, a Dorchester family of seven persons are being harbored temporarily by kind-hearted neighbors.

There are three reasons for their eviction. The objection to children, allegations of religious prejudice and failure to pay a $5 raise in rent.

Rev. Francis X. Dolan, pastor of St. Gregory's Roman Catholic Church, later told the Boston American he had interviewed the landlord and that the latter agreed to allow the evicted family to return until they could find another apartment.

WITH FIVE CHILDREN.

The family is that of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Dougan and their five children, ranging in age from five to fifteen years. They have for twelve years resided at No. 1949 Dorchester avenue, Dorchester. They were victed by their landlord, John B. Wenzler, of No. 647 Second street, South Boston, accompanied by a constable armed with a writ of ejectment. All they possessed in this world, was placed on the sidewalk and later removed in a furniture van by two men hired for the occasion to the Elliot Storage Warehouse on Columbus avenue, South End.

Mr. and Mrs. Dougan and three of their children, Raymond, 5; Warren, 7, and James, 9 years old, are being sheltered by Mrs. L. Lank, a neighbor. Anna, 11, and Gertrude, 15 years old, are being cared for by a Mrs. Sweeney, another neighbor.

REFUED TO PAY.

The Dougans, it is alleged, had refused to pay a five dollar raise. The Dorchester court several months ago gave them until June 15 to move out. Mr. Dougan, who is a barber in a Main street, Watertown, barber shop, declared that for several months he has given several hours each day to seeking for rooms, but says wherever it was discovered that he had five children, he was turned away.

"We want no children here," is the slogan of the landlords, he declares.

"I have lived in this house for nine years," declared Mrs. Dougan, "and have always been a good tenant. But during the last year the ownership of the building has changed hands over SIX times. Every new landlord gave us a raise in pay. When we moved in, we were paying $21, now we are asked to pay $40."

FILM GIRLS FIGHT CASE

Surrounded by many friends and a hundred or more court spectators, Helen Neary McCloskey, formerly of the Follies; Alma Rhodes, motion picture actress; Gaston Glass, film star, and Louis Gassner prominent motion picture director, stood in police court prepared to fight social vagrancy charges filed against them following their arrest in a fashionable Hollywood home early in the morning. BARES MURDER AS GIRL WAS ALONE IN DEATH

Youngstown, O., June 12.—The horrifying thought of the girl he loved lying cold in death, by his own hands, alone in an unfrequented country road, is responsible, police say, for Chris Connel, Filipino chauffeur, being held in the jail at Warren, formally charged with murder.

"I could not bear the thought of her being there alone," Police Chief Watkins says Connell declared, in confessing that he stabbed Helena Marie Drachmann, pretty Danish sales girl, to death with his pocket knife because she told him she "had changed her mind" about marrying him, and hid the body in a culvert in the lonely country road.

Connell's confession came soon after Chief Watkins had confronted him with the report of a handwriting expert, asserting that a note, received by the Chief last Friday directing him where to find the body, and samples of Connell's writing were identical.

Connell is declared to have said that he drew his knife and stabbed her half a dozen times. He then took off his linen duster, tied it over her head and thrust the body into the culvert where it remained a week before being found by officials who followed the direction of his note.

CAMBRIDGE VOTES TEACHERS' PAY RAISE

A long-sought increase of salaries by the Cambridge school teachers was voted by the Cambridge School Committee. Women teachers in the high schools are increased $180 a year and teachers in the elementary schools $192 a year.

The additional expenditure of $75,000 a year must be sanctioned by the City Council before it becomes effective.

Driven to Suicide by Mystery of His Auto Engine

Somerville, N. J., June 12.—Despondent because he had taken his automobile engine apart and could not put it together again, Gustave Schutzenhofer of Floral Park banged himself from a rafter in his garage.

The body was found by his mother, who became alarmed over his absence.

HUMAN LONGEVITY SHOWS INCREASE

The Massachusetts Medical Society has just issued a statement showing that the human race has greatly increased its average longevity. Dr. David L. Edsall states: "In the 18th century the average of human life was between eighteen and twenty years; in the eighteenth century it was less than twenty-five years, in the nineteenth century between forty-five and forty-eight years and so far in the twentieth century it has gone up to fifty-six years.

LOU GALLANTLY DEFENDS TRIO GERRY NAMED

Commenting the three women named with him by Geraldine Farrar in her divorce suit, Lou Tellegen today protested his innocence of the charges made by the diva.

Asserting Stella Larrimore, Lorna Anniss and Kathleen Clifford were all "unjustly accused," the actor expressed his determination to "give them all the assistance possible."

"All three girls are innocent of any wrongdoing," Tellegen said. "I am innocent. I have never had anything to do with any of them.

"Until last week I had worked steadily for more than a year. I laid off last week in New York because I was determined to give all the assistance I possibly could to Miss Larrimore.

"Miss Larrimore is a beautiful girl. She comes from beautiful people. I have known her and her family for some time."

Tellegen is appearing this week at Keith's Theatre in the sketch, "Blind Youth."

Between performances and his divorce case, Lou managed to find a few minutes to devote to the editing of final touches to his new vaudeville sketch—"His Real Love."

It has been hinted that this is something like the story of the Tellegen-Farrar matrimonial wreck. Lou has nothing to say as to this.

In any event Lou will appear in this new skit before very long with two other men and two women. This is a comedy with a mixture of drama.

13 in 3-Room Flat Kick at 50-Cent Raise of Rent

Fall River, June 12.—A tenant in a house on Brady street complained that his rent had been raised from $2.50 to $3 per week and that when he had refused to pay the increase the landlady had served him with a thirty days' notice to quit.

Investigation by the Rent Commission revealed that thirteen persons were occupying the tenement, which consists of only three living rooms, and how sleeping accommodations were provided the commission could not figure out. The commission referred the complainant to Second District Court.

DRY SHIP FIGHTS WAY TO PORT WITH PRIZE

Detroit, Mich., June 12.—A boat of the "dry navy" limped into port partly awash from water streaming through leaks in bow and stern, but none the less a victor in her first battle with the "mosquito fleet" of the Detroit River rum runners.

It was the government speedboat P-103, with a rum launch containing 100 cases and 20 kegs of beer in tow, that battered her way through ten swarming rum speed boats that harassed her and rammed her and snatched at her liquor prize and attempted to sink her until G. A. Van Dusen in the government boat sent them scurrying for cover with several shots from his pistol.

The rum-laden launch had made a dash from Fighting Island, in Canadian waters, to "Hogan's Alley," a favorite American terminal for contraband liquor at Ecorse. The rum boat beat the P-103 to the shore, but her skipper did not have time to tie up to the dock before the P-103 was alongside. The rum boat skipper escaped.

STOLE WATCH TO OBTAIN MOONSHINE

"I was all right till I got a drink of Simon's moonshine. Then I forgot everything. The first thing I knew I had stolen a watch. It was the moonshine," declared John Lynch of Lowell in the Middlesex Criminal Court during the trial of John Simons, also of Lowell, on the charge of this illegal sale of liquor.

According to Lynch, he stole the watch after he had drank a quantity of Simon's moonshine. He later exchanged the watch for a half pint of moonshine which Simon gave him. He is now serving a three months' sentence in the House of Correction for the theft.

Assistant Attorney Bishon, declaring that Simon was as responsible as Lynch for the theft, said: "Liquor that will drive men to crime is not moonshine, but crimeshine." Judge Hammond imposed a fine of $100 and a three months' sentence on Simonds.

EDISON LAUGHS OVER HIS HUB ROACH KILLER

RESULTED IN LOSS OF HIS JOB

Telegraph Office Manager Annoyed by Curious Discharged Inventor

Thomas A. Edison's first invention was a device for catching cockroaches. He invented the contraption right here in Boston some fifty years ago.

"It was one of my very first inventions," said Mr. Edison as he sat back in his easy chair spinning interesting yarns of his experiences of long ago. Mr. Edison enjoys a hearty laugh. He also enjoys a quiet chuckle. As he told of his cockroach catcher he burst out laughing like a small boy at the circus.

"You see it was this way," he said. "I was working in the Western Union office near the Old State House. I was just a telegraph operator taking news stories on the special New York wire.

"It seems that the place used to be an old restaurant. Cockroaches took up their abode in the walls and grew so plentiful they became a nuisance. We used to watch them crawl up the walls in droves.

ROACHES ELECTROCUTED.

"One day I decided I would try to fix up something to clean them out. I got two pieces of sheet tin. I put them on the wall with their edges a fraction of an inch apart.

"To one I connected a positive and to the other a negative wire. When the cockroaches crawled along over the tin and connected with the tin of the other connection there would be a spark. There would follow a flash of fire and Mr. Cockroach would drop to the floor.

"Well the story of the cockroach catcher went round to the newspaper offices and finally a reporter came down to see me. It was the first time I was ever interviewed. Some subject for an interview—a cockroach catcher.

"That reporter did such a good job with the story that crowds began coming in to see the device work. Then the manager got mad and made me take the thing down." Mr. Edison ended with a roar of laughter.

Mr. Edison takes pride in telling of his first trip to Boston. It was fifty-two years ago.

EARNED A PASS

"I was out of a job at the time," said the wizard." I had been a military telegrapher in the Civil War. When I was discharged I went back to Michigan. I got tired hanging around and wanted to come East to see what the 'highbrows' were like. So I started for Bosotn.

"I reached Boston in the dead of Winter, and was wearing a linen duster in place of an overcoat. You may judge I was poor then. I didn't have much in the way of clothes. My principal worry when I reached here was getting a job.

"I blew into the Western Union office on State street and told the manager I was out of a job. He told me to come back that night. He put me to work taking 'specials' from New York. In New York there was a man who was the fastest sender in the company. So they framed me up one night.

"FRAMED UP."

"I was taking a news story from him. I noticed he was going pretty fast, but I could take fast, too, so did not mind it. Then he started cutting his words. He was sending irny for immediately and it for that and a lot of just such stuff. I guessed him pretty well and was going along mighty fast.

"I looked around and saw the gang gathered round me watching. Then I knew I had been framed. I finally reached the point where I feared I would fall down.

"I cut in and told the New York operator he had better take a rest and start sending with his other foot. That settled him and put me right with the gang in the office."

Health is Wealth

Sickness is bitter poverty!

Without health money is a mockery

Health brings Happiness

HEALTH! Without it, money is a mockery. Having it, life is worth living. For women, health means good looks and pleasing personality. For men it makes possible steady income and success in their work. For children, health is vital for their growth and happiness.

You mothers are the "Health Doctors." You yourselves must guard the family from disease. Public Health Bureaus and great Foundations tell you how. They have spent millions of dollars to find the foes of health.

They tell you that DIRT is the enemy to fight. They warn against the dust that is always soiling hands and face. It is not "clean dirt"—it contains countless invisible enemies.

That dirt breeds every dread disease. Sometimes it only causes ugly skin blemishes. At other times it brings on serious sickness.

Your Great Ally

You have one great ally in your daily fight with dirt. The world's greatest soapmakers perfected it. It is called Lifebuoy.

Lifebuoy contains rich, red palm-fruit oil and purest oil of cocoanut. In its natural state palm-fruit oil is red—so Lifebuoy is red. Simply as soap you could not buy a finer, more pleasing toilet soap than Lifebuoy. Women call Lifebuoy a complexion soap. Men like it for the bath. But Lifebuoy is much MORE than soap.

A way was found to blend in Lifebuoy a wonderful health element. That unique extra ingredient gives Lifebuoy its healthful, pungent odor. The odor quickly vanishes—but the protection remains.

Wonderful Results

The rich, creamy lather of Lifebuoy carries the health element deep down into the dirt-clogged pores. The skin is really cleaned—completely purified and deodorized. Lifebuoy's sure, sanative action combats all dirt and lurking disease germs.

Mother! Don't be misled by surface cleanliness. Safeguard the skin of every member of the family. It is best to buy several cakes of this real Health Soap so you can put one at every place in the home where there is running water.

Because thoughtful mothers everywhere have enlisted in the nation-wide fight against preventable disease, Lifebuoy is now probably the widest-selling toilet soap in the world.

SMOKE PALL HITS BOSTON; COMES FROM MAINE FIRES

Today's northeast breeze brought to Boston, instead of the usual invigorating tang of the salt sea, a heavy, pungent pall of smoke from the forest fires raging in Houlton, Presque Isle and other points on the Maine-New Brunswick frontier. The sun rose a blood-red disk, dimly seen through the thick haze.

Weather Bureau experts said that the smoke failed to give the landscape the "yellow day" aspect because it was so near the earth that the effect was more nearly like looking through smoked glass. The heavy atmosphere which accompanies a northeaster keeps the smoke from rising to the upper atmosphere.

SALESMAN "SUICIDE" IS SEEN IN PROVIDENCE

THIEVES PILE UP LUMBER TO STEAL

8-HOUR DAY IN STEEL PLANTS IS SUCCESS

New York, June 12.—The eight-hour working day in the steel industry, in force five years in the plants of the Colorado Fuel & Iron Company, is a decided success, and has greatly increased production per man-hour, according to F. Welborn, president of the company.

This assertion is widely at variance with the report of the Iron and Steel Institute, which seconded the statement of Judge Gary of the United States Steel Corporation that any other than the twelve-hour work day would be ruinous to the industry.

"The statement of the Colorado Company favoring the eight-hour day was made public by the Federal Council of Churches, which has taken exception to the stand of the Iron and Steel Institute and Judge Gary.

"The immediate results from the standpoint of production per man hour and of labor cost per unit of output were satisfactory," the letter said, "and where conditions have been comparable it has been evident that they have lost nothing either in producting cost or output, by reason of the change.

"At blast furnace and labor cost per ton immediately following the introduction of the eight-hour day with the increase of 10 per cent. in wage rates, increased slightly over one per cent. above former costs.

"A factor of added interest is the fact that with almost capacity operations at our steel plant during the last few months and employing over 6,000 men, we have experienced no shortage of labor. Our operating officials have frequently expressed the belief that this condition is due, in large part at least, to aroption of the eight-hour shift."

DIVORCED PAIR TO REWED

Both Married and Lost Mates After They Were Divorced in 1898

With the filing today in the Somerville City Hall of the marriage returns of George Admiral Drake, seventy-six years old, of Orange, and Mrs. Harriett E. Tenney, sixty-eight years old, of West Somerville, goes an extraor[illegible] story of divorced con[illegible]ted after twenty-five years, [illegible]ch had taken another mate.

Drake and his present bride were married thirty-eight years ago at Greenfield by the Rev. Israel B. Quimby, a Universalist minister.

On April 25, 1898, Drake secured a divorce from her on the grounds of desertion, and soon after both Drake and [illegible] wife married [illegible] second wife and [illegible] second husband [illegible] year or two of [illegible]ous induced the two to [illegible]sponding, and for the time Drake proposed and was accepted.

"It was his fascinating letters that did it," Mrs. Drake explained to the clerks in City Hall.

The second marriage was performed by the same clergyman, now a resident of Malden, in the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. John W. Silver, of No. 28 Sunset road, West Soverville. The couple left at once for their new home in Orange.

TAKE FINGER PRINTS IN BURGLAR HUNT

Finger prints of the several persons having access to the safe in the Liggett drug store at No. 301 Washington street were taken by Inspector James Claffin of the bureau of criminal investigation as the first step in an att mpt to trace the identity of the burglars who on Sunday morning robbed that safe, another in the Truly Warner Hat Company's store, adjoining, and a third in Mattapan, of a total of more than $2,000.

A single finger print on the cash drawer in the Liggett store is the only clue on which the police have to work.

PREACHER WARNS OF 'SUICIDE'

Rev. Mr. Helms, Who Has 12, Sees America's Salvation in Big Families

To the parents of none or only one or two children—

Do you realize that your marriage is a failure and that your home is abnormal!

Don't you know that it takes at least four real live, bouncing, healthy youngsters to make your "home beautiful" worth while? And therein lies America's salvation—a means to perpetuate herself.

Or are you blind to the question? Are you evading your moral and ethical responsibility and feigning ignorance of the meaning of race suicide?

The answer to all this is given by Rev. Edgar J. Helms, pastor-superintendent of the Morgan Memorial Church of All Nations, twice married and the father of twelve children, the last one just having been baptized by a colored minister in his own church.

GREATEST BLESSING.

"If parents who are fit to bear children don't have large families, they are shirking their responsibility," says the proud minister. "Large families are the greatest blessing God could make.

"We need families of six, seven, eight or nine children or even more to do away with all the selfishness, meanness, and egotism in this world.

"But I add immediately. If parents cannot afford to bring children into this world and haven't the means of giving them the decent advantages of life, those things to which every child has a right, then I say, don't have children. Rather than cram the spiritual and mental and physical growth and development of a child into a small playground and living space, I'd do away with children. They wouldn't be of any use in the long run, anyhow."

Too much America first is responsible for the low birth rate in this country, according to the minister. We are too busy with ourselves and we haven't time to help humanity, he adds.

HOPE IN FOREIGNERS.

"For this reason our hope lies in the foreign population," he maintains, "unless the natives of America get hep to themselves and express their affection for one another in terms of men and women. Here is hoping the foreigners do not become impregnated with the French idea. If they don't, we are saved."

Dr. Helms advises segregation of the unfit in order not to allow them to propagate and perpetuate.

"Every child has the right to be well born of clean, honest, strong and virile parents," he says.

"Those who are living in luxury and ease, unwilling to bear the pains and pangs of childbirth and parenthood are not living up to the traditions of their ancestors. In the days of the revolution every man was virile and he showed it by the population we have today. Those who look upon children, many of them with disdain, are selfish.

"My family is not as large as it could be and as some other families are. It is to people like us that America looks with open arms. The training my children receive at my hands will make them righteous citizens, well able to take up the leadership of their community and state. That is the duty of every father and mother."

PREFERS GIRL TO BEING 'BIG STICK' OF HAITI

MR. AND MRS. ROGER A. HARRIS

Which would you rather be—a bachelor chief of gendarmes in Haiti or a policeman in Boston with the girl of your choice at your side? It didn't take Roger A. Harris, who started pounding the South End pavements today, an hour to make his choice.

Harris entered the Marine Corps when he was a boy of 15. After serving with the Fifth Regiment across seas he was transferred to the negro island republic and became its chief of police.

In France he had met Miss Yvonne V. Denis of Endicott avenue, Beachmont, a Red Cross nurse. She told him to await an answer to his importunate proposals until after the war. Then came the separation. From Haiti came letters to Beachmont. "Be mine" was their text and theme.

"Well, since you are so pressing—perhaps—but you will have to come to Boston and live here. I can't be marrying a man who is liable to be sent to the Fiji Islands the day after our wedding," the ex-nuse replied.

The commission was resigned that day, and the former Marine came to Boston. He started raising Guinea pigs for medical experiments, but disease wiped out his stock.

Then he joined the police force and a few days ago they hunted up Chaplain Burns at the Navy Yard, for old association's sake, and he made them one. They are living at No. 1710 Washington street.

Fond memories of the languorous tropics beset Harris as he patrols the prosaic South End beat. "By gosh, she's worth it," he whispers softly, in the house.

2 ARRESTED IN SWAPPING JEWELRY

"Dardanella" Collins and "Bubbles" Enos Have $2,000 Alleged Loot

James "Dardanella" Collins of No. 170 Curtis street, Somerville, and Joseph "Bubbles" Enos of No. 18 East Springfield street, South End, were arrested on an inbound Dudley street car today by Special Officers Louis D. Sessa and James O'Neil and jewelry valued at $2,000, alleged to have been stolen, was recovered from them.

The pair were swapping pieces of jewelry in the car, unaware that they were being watched by the plain-clothes men. When they reached East Dedham street the officers took the men to the police station there. On the way they threw into the street two valuable necklaces, a diamond pendant and two $5 gold coins in a box, which were recovered by the officers. Other jewelry was found in the bags which they carried.

The officers then went to the homes of the two men, where they found other jewelry, furs, women's apparel of all kinds and other valuable loot.

Lieutenant James H. Flaherty of the Winthrop police identified much of the jewelry and some of the apparel as that stolen yesterday from the house of Arthur F. Hanson on Shirley street in that town.

Collins and Enos were arraigned before Judge Dowd in the Municipal Court and held in $5,000 bail for a further hearing.

POLICE SEIZE STILL IN WINTHROP RAID

Winthrop police raided a house on Argyle street, that town, and seized a fifty-gallon still and forty-five gallons of alcohol. No one was

MAYOR'S PLEA STIRS MASONS

"God and Country" Speech Wins Hearty Approval of Convention Delegates

At the opening of the convention of the National League of Masonic Clubs at the Copley-Plaza today Mayor Curley was cheered by delegates when he extolled the spirit of love for God and country shown in the opening exercises and pleaded for a strong national spirit broad enough to include all classes and creeds in America.

The meeting opened with the singing of "America" and was followed by the Lord's Prayer by the delegates. Dr. H. Melvin Allen presiding. W. L. Terhune, chairman of the convention committee, then introduced Mayor Curley, who said:

"In the five and a half years during which I have been mayor of this city I have extended the hospitality of the city to more than 2,000 such meetings as this. Yet I have never been so greatly inspired as I have at this meeting, which has been opened with the acknowledgment of the fact that all we are and all we hope to be we owe to God Almighty and to our country.

GOD AND COUNTRY

"It has been an ample reply to the story in the press today, concerning the literature of a vicious propaganda issued at your headquarters, but which you have proved that you and your organization are in no way responsible for. No body of men, whose first thoughts on an occasion of this sort are for God and country can be anything else but the highest type of citizens.

"We need an American spirit, a broad, tolerant, national spirit, which will inspire all Americans to love their adopted country, to maintain the ideals of the fathers of this nation and to stamp out anarchy, disloyalty, treason and contempt for law.

"I am glad that you have chosen to meet in this city. No other in this land contains so many patriotic shrines. I beg of you to visit these sacred spots and go away full of purpose to do your part in the building up of this American spirit.

"During the war every race and creed in our varied citizenship evolved a genuine national American spirit. We owe it to America and to humanity to try to rebuild this spirit for all time. One way to do it is to open all meetings and gatherings with a profession of love for God and our country, as you have done today.

"There is a disposition on the part of many cynically-minded people today to show contempt for the men of the Mayflower, and to belittle that greatest of all human documents, the Constitution. A desire to rewrite the history of America is manifested. The records of the Pilgrims and Puritans are raked over for evidence of their weakness and excesses.

REPUBLIC HERITAGE

"We must stand by their record of achievement. Instead. They left us this precious heritage, the American Republic, and that other precious heritage, a liberal government in which kings and titled tyrants have no part."

Arthur B. Eaton, president of the Eastern Masonic Travelers' Club and vice-president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Masonic Clubs, responded. He extolled Mayor Curley's patriotic address of welcome, and acknowledged the need for a national spirit.

"There is in America now a strong undercurrent of unrest and discontent, which we deplore," he said. "It is fomented and fostered by groups of anarchists from other shores, to whom our history and our traditions are anathemas. These troublesome aliens should be sent back to where they came from. I would like to see them deported in a sinking ship, laden with lead and sand, and destined for the shores of Hell."

THE 'BIG FAMILY' PREACHER

REV. EDGAR J. HELMS AND FAMILY

The pastor of Morgan Memorial Church, twice married and the father of twelve children, is shown with a portion of his family. The picture shows, rear row, standing, (left to right), Hollis, Pauline, William and Ruth. Front row, Lenora, Mrs. E. J. Helms, holding baby Henry, Eugenia, Dr. Helms, holding Phoebe, and Thedura.

CHAPTER VIII.

THE man gazed on her keenly, incredulously. "Your mother? That's hardly possible. Yet—yes. You are wonderfully like her." There was a caressing intonation in his voice as he said the words. "Permit me I am Cary Scott."

"Oh!" gasped Constance in dismay. Cary Scott, the old romance about which she had heard her father joke her mother more than once, concerning which all the children had felt a lively curiosity because it was supposed to be "different" from Mona's other little adventures Cary Scott here in the flesh and in tragic ignorance of her mother's death! Commanding herself, she drew aside with a slight, gracious gesture which bade him enter. Bowing, he passed into the hallway and shook the snow from his coat. Not until he had reached the door of the library did she gather her forces to tell him.

"Hadn't you heard about Mother, Mr. Scott?" she asked very gently.

Her tone stopped him. His eyes were steady as he raised them to the lovely, pitying face before him. But hollows seemed suddenly to have fallen in beneath them. "Not—?" he whispered.

She inclined her head. "Nearly a year ago."

"Why haven't I heard? Why was I not told?" he demanded.

"Father wrote you, I think. You must sit down." She pushed a chair around for him and, laying light hands upon his shoulders, slipped his coat back. "Take it off," she said.

He obeyed. He was like a man tranced. Seated under the lamplight he stared fixedly into a dark corner of the room, as if to evoke a vision for his appeasement. Sharply intrigued, Constance took the opportunity of observing him at her leisure. He was, she decided, a delightful personality, all the more engaging for that touch of the exotic, that hint of potential romance which the men of her acquaintance did not have. No woman would have called him handsome. His features were too irregular, and the finely-modelled forehead was scarred vertically with a savagely deep V which mercifully lost itself in the clustering hair, a testimony to active war service. There was confident distinction in his bearing, and an atmosphere of quiet and somewhat ironic worldliness in voice and manner. He looked to be a man who had experimented much with life in its larger meanings and found it amusing but perhaps not fulfilling. Reckoning him contemporaneously with the implication of that betraying "Mona" of his first utterance, Constance thought:

"He must be nearly forty to have been one of Mother's suitors. But he looks hardly over thirty."

She heard him sigh as he drew his spirit back from far distances, and was sensitive to the power of control implied in the composed countenance which he turned to her.

"You should be Constance Fentriss."

"Constance Browning," she corrected. "I'm an old married woman of two years' standing."

"Grand Dieu!" he muttered. "I think of you always as hardly more than a child. As I used to hear about you. One loses touch."

"You had not seen my mother for a long time, had you?"

"Very long. Many years. But one does not forget her kind."

Constance, who had not seated herself during this passage of speech, crossed to the mantel, and lifted from it a heavily framed photograph which she placed in the visitor's hands.

"That was taken a few months before she died."

"Unchanged!" he breathed.

Something imperative in Constance's burgeoning interest in the man drove her to ask: "Did you—were you very much in love with her?"

There was daring in her tone; but there was compassion also. Because of his sense of the latter he answered her frankly:

"No. Not, perhaps as most people understand it. Love asks much. I asked—nothing. It was not," he smiled faintly, "as one falls in love and falls out."

THE WAYS OF A HUSBAND—By ANN LISLE

A Splendid Sequel to the Famous Story of Wedded Life, "When a Girl Marries"

HOW THE STORY STARTS

Jim and Anne find happiness again on a honeymoon spent in the apartment of Betty Winston, loaned for the occasion. They go to Dreamwold for a Sunday dinner with Jeanie and are met in the grounds by Rosa, who ignores Anne. Rosa advises the discharge of Mabel Storrs to save the big salary. This Anne rescnts. Evvy helps Anne arrange her apartments and a dinner is given as a housewarming. Phoebe grows dysterical on receipt of Carlotta's wedding invitation. Carlotta asks for a tete-a-tete with Anne, and Jim stays in the room.

By Ann Lisle

"I THOUGHT my smock was lovely——" I protested, a little hurt as a woman can't help being when a man she loves complains of her appearance and criticizes her taste in clothes.

"Well, you're not your best in it. And it's no rig for dinner at Dreamwold no matter how informal a family party we're having. You're too flowerlike for serge and glittery smocks—as you call the darn things, though I don't see how those long-waisted, self-skirted blouses come by the name."

"They're like painters' smocks," I explained.

"Who said so?" Jim exploded. "Say, what's the use of all this argument? I tell you I want you to doll up and do me credit. Instead of being glad I take all this interest, there you sit arguing half the night. I want you to look pretty, prosperous—and that reminds me, where's the bracelet I gave you? Don't you like it?"

"It's beautiful." I replied, grateful for the literal mindedness that wouldn't pounce on my avoidance of saying whether or no I liked the bracelet.

Vain Argument

"Then why don't you wear it?" "We're going around in a circle," I giggled nervously. "I can't belittle an expensive and dressy jewel like that by wearing it with tailor-mades, and when I'm held up at the office by business I can't come home and dress and still get to Dreamwold with a promptness required by the Harrison clan for its dinners—formal or merely family."

"You're clever all right—and some sidestepper," laughed Jim. "I'll let you win that one. But I'm darned if I see why you want to lock your jewels up in a top drawer as temptations to the Daisy Condons of your acquaintance."

"Jim, that isn't fair!" I cried. Then, recognizing the folly of fighting Daisy's battles at a moment like this, I added, placatingly: "I'm saving the bracelet to spring on the clan at Carlotta's wedding. It's too gorgeous for the simple clothes in which you like me best, but it will be set off by the chiffons and tulles and pastel shades I'm trailing after me up the aisle. I thought Carlotta's wedding the first suitable occasion for it, and since you gave it to me for securing Rosa her invitation"—

Jim leaped to his feet with an explosive sound.

"I've burned a hole in this pet silk robe of mine," he explained.

"Jim, why were you so interested in getting Rosa invited?" I asked hastily.

"What makes you think I was so interested? What makes you think I gave you the bracelet for that? Can't I just give you a present because I want—you to have it? You women are so darn analytical you make me tired. Only today Rosa was purring and asking why we got her the eleventh-hour bid."

"What did you say?" I asked because it seemed the obvious thing to remark.

"Because I'm darn tired of trailing her around myself." The amount of energy Jim put into his response amazed me. "Because I am sick of having her think I have to be her cavalier. When I have a date she snoops more than you do——"

An Insulting Word

"Jim," I cried passionately, "I do not snoop. That's a most insulting word."

"Excuse me, dearest, I'm all keyed up. Rosa's on my nerves. She acts as if she had a claim on me. I'm her social sponsor—or Ramon Isn't my business sponsor. It's getting me. I'm a brute to take it out on you."

Jim's contrition touched me deeply.

"I'll be nicer to Rosa. Then you won't have her on your mind so much, you poor boy," I promised. "I'll make myself enjoy her good points and shut my eyes to the prickly ones."

Jim came over and laid his hand on my head. There was no emotion in the gesture except the gentleness of benediction. I caught his hand and pulled it down to my lips. But as I laid them against it he jerked away with sudden passion such as he had not shown on touching my hair.

I got to my feet and faced him. His face was gray and its lines sagged.

Neptune's Sweetheart -:- DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

"NELL, the Prairie Flower"—otherwise, the little booted and spurred, violet-shirted, scarlet-kerchiefed, tall-hatted and tan-cheeked cow-girl, has nothing in common with the "Eastern Daughter of the Sea" save in those same tanned cheeks and her allegiance to the God of Love.

She does not steer a tame, sleepy, elderly, carriage horse up to a fence post and, climbing down by way of it, walk three miles home for fear it might kick over the traces, as a "Daughter of the Sea" I once knew did! She is not afraid to bridle and board an angry, big black horse with a bad reputation, but she is afraid to board a cat-boat from a swaying float and ride old Neptune's sea-horses! And she is afraid of crabs! USUALLY—of course.

And the girl who climbs the corral fence when a friendly, blithe young calfie comes strolling along, dabbles in the fearful old gray sea—among the lobsters and the crabs, the great green waves and the trailing, mysterious sea-weed, the crashing white foam riding in, terribly from the open sea, and the sandy bottom with its strange, shadowy creatures walking sideways. SHE rides old Neptune's fishes when Summer comes, in a one-piece bathing suit, with gratitude for the playground of the great green sea and the—one-piece bathing suit!

If the little cow-girl is the West Wind's sweetheart—why, the bathing girl is Neptune's best girl. —NELL BRINKLEY.

THE HE MAN

SHE FLEW WITH HIM TO THE JUNGLE

By George Agnew Chamberlain

"YOU mean," said M'sungo, "so that you can believe me when I tell you it would be a disaster should he catch a glimpse of you?" In other words, you want to be persuaded that I'm telling the truth."

"Not at all," said Andrea. "You're fishing for trouble. I mean—just a warning."

"Well, if you mean just that," said M'sungo, "it is quite unnecessary, for the man is his own warning. Only see him before he sees you and I won't have to gag you, I won't have to lock you up. I may, however, have to put the tracker on your trail into the bush."

"You think there is a man living I would run from?" said Andrea. "You don't know me."

"Perhaps you wouldn't," said M'sungo, "but in the case of MacCloster, it would be because you couldn't on account of jelly in the knees."

Wants to See Him

"Oh!" cried Andrea. "Now you have done it. Now I want to see him."

"Andrea Fellor," said M'sungo quietly, "please believe me when I tell you that you don't. I'm hoping the old devil won't go on a tear while you're here, but if he does and if he comes, just remember what I tell you. Rather than have MacCloster see you and touch you, I would gladly cut your throat."

"Why mine?" asked Andrea. "It would have impressed me a lot more if you'd said your own. Perhaps you realized that I couldn't quite believe that."

"Now you're trying to quarrel," said the white man coolly. Aren't you sleepy?"

"No."

He yawned.

"That's nice of you," said Andrea. "And since you're interested, I might as well ask a few more questions. What were you doing on that damned beach with your aeroplane, anyway? Will that be telling tales out of school?"

He looked relieved. "Not at all. I'd got off my third steamerload and I suddenly had news that put it up to me to change the captain's sailing orders before he passed beyond the reach of wireless. There wasn't time for anything but the old flying boat so I ran her out and jogged down the coast. I wasn't on that 'damned' beach more than thirty minutes, all told."

"Thirty minutes," murmured Andrea. "Who would have thought that one little half-hour could ever matter. I've always thought of half-hours as marbles—the cheap kind."

"I know," said the white man. "Five for a penny and dear at the price."

Something in the way he said it made her look up. "Do you mean marbles or half-hours?"

"Half-hours." He stared at her. "You've always been willing to risk them at that price and me—why, I've always longed for them by thousands of them. There are so many big games to play, so little time to play them in!"

"So much to do, so little, et cetera," quoted Andrea lightly.

"Don't!" said the man sharply.

"I beg your pardon," he added, "but there are a couple of things I'm a bit crazy on."

"Elephants and what else?" asked Andrea.

He looked at her musingly. "It doesn't pay to tell you things," he said finally. "We get along better just living."

"I wonder how you know!" said Andrea. "You've told me such a lot, haven't you? Where did you learn to fly?"

Her question seemed to send a shock through him, but he met her eyes squarely and said nothing. Andrea waited a full minute, then she began. "Who are you? What's your name? Where did you come from? Do you always take an aeroplane along? Are you an amateur? If you're not, why do you shrivel every time I say flying-machine? Why do you?" She pounded the table.

Face Paled

The man's face paled and went whiter at each of her questions, but he held his tongue and his silence maddened her. Without taking her angry eyes off his face she swept two coffee cups, two saucers and two liqueur glasses to the ground with a crash.

Nothing could have served better to break the tension. The man smiled. "That was rude," he said pleasantly. "You're like me—when in doubt, do something. Well," he continued in his lighter tone, "I can answer only a part of all your questions and I will answer because I don't want you ever to ask them again. Slender pirit of all your questions and I will answer because I don't want you ever to ask them again. Slender pirit of the whole mystery. During the first year of the war I was a flyer for the Allies. I was on the way to a big name when my nerve went back on me. I couldn't believe it. I came down here and brought a machine with me, working on my old theory of contrasts. You saw how I flew—how I landed. You took me for an amateur. That's all. Please leave it. It's the flaw in my philosophy, the inevitable fly in the clear amber of a reasonably happy life."

He snapped his cigar away, sending after it a long beat puff of smoke. Andrea no longer watched him. Her eyes fixed on the dying glow of the cigar butt. "I owe you several apologies," she said quietly, "but I'm not to blame. I couldn't have guessed. I can understand some of what you feel because I've heard of several cases like yours—poor devils that took young and well but find terror in the ugly eyes of a world critical of slackers. But there was one—I remember his name. Robert Oldman Trevor, a Canadian."

WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

"Man is his own star."

Man can hope for no success except through his own efforts, wrote John Fletcher (1576-1625) in "Honest Man's Fortune."

"They lard their lean books with the fat of others' work."

Burton in his "Anatomy of Melancholy" gives this as the reason why some imitators are successful.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I want to give a book as a birthday present to a girl relative. I want to have her name printed on it. Would it be correct to print "With Birthday Greetings to Miss Blank," or would it be better to have the name and date only? M.

IT would give a more dignified and handsome appearance to the book, I think, if you had printed on it just the name and the date. Since the girl is a relative, don't use any abbreviations.

HOW TO FORGET TROUBLES

TROUBLES knock up your system like Jack Dempsey knocks down his opponent.

Troubles deal blows both in the head and stomach—and they hurt the stomach more than they do the head!

Troubles give the stomach indigestion, allow up the liver—and then follow constipation and biliousness.

The way to get rid of troubles is to invigorate digestion, stimulate liver and bowels and tone up the entire system. The best way to do this—has been for the past 80 years—is to take Beecham's Pills.

RICHARDS WILL WIN TENNIS TITLE AT WIMBLEDON

70,000 Fans to See Wilde and Villa in Title Bout

BIG SHOW TO BE STAGED AT NIGHT

New York, June 12.—Under the direction of the architect who planned the new Polo Grounds Stadium, which, when finished, will have a capacity of 92,000, electricians began today to install the new lighting system which will turn night into day.

The lights, for the work to be finished June 1, two days before the Jack W. Dempsey-Luis Angel Firpo championship fight, which takes place on the night of June 24th, and is expected to draw a record breaking great crowd ever seen in New York or anywhere else, the greatest crowd ever gathered together to witness a prize fight at night in the world.

The ring will be the center of the ring, the seats will be arranged in tiers, the boxes will be erected against the stone walls, while the best seats will be those directly in front of the arena thus giving the audience when the glare of the spotlight affects the vision.

SEATS FOR 70,000 FANS AT RING CLASSIC

Each day as the work on the east stands advances there will be more than 70,000 without the fourth tier. It is planned to make as much room as possible for the popular priced ticket holders who will undoubtedly turn out in force. With the opportunity of getting in on the ground floor, the management is confident that the receipts will be enormous.

Jack Dempsey, who is training for the coming fight, has been working each day as a result of his 4 years' absence from the ring. It is believed that the offer of the representative Tex Rickard to put the $2,500 forfeit money they have up, so as to bind, has given new confidence to the former champion. Wilde weighed 1 pound 1 ounce today.

Jack Dempsey with fast American youngsters. He started with 1 pound 1 ounce. He is training now in a few days he will work with feather men.

Jack Churchill, the man who brought Pancho Villa from the Philippines and placed him in the ring of boxing and wrestling, has won the backing of Tex Rickard before proposed a match between Villa and Jack Dempsey.

Churchill said he had the rules to be used in the fight. I am sure Mr. Rickard would not consent me to stick to the rules but this proposition is strictly amateurs. First I know that Wilde might be in pretty good condition and there can be no excuse for him after Villa wins his title. I know it is the custom in England to have a side stake and if we were in England I would jump at the offer. I might even be a good enough sport to take the bet at even money although it looks like that the champion will be favorite in the betting.

$15 IS TOP PRICE FOR THE RINGSIDE SEATS

There is a scramble of sporting patrons at the Pershing Palace at Jersey City, where Wilde is training for Frankie Harris, once a ring hero, volunteered to supply them but he has his hands full for the reason that Wilde will not and in fact cannot, pull his punches. A new crop of sparring partners have to be found to-day. Wilde worked 3 very fast rounds today, three with Al Fox and four with Mickey Taylor. Although he has an English trainer, he boxes with American.

Tickets for the Wade-Villa contest were placed on sale today at the Polo Grounds, No. 15 West 44th street and No. 1697 Broadway. There is every promise of a capacity crowd on the night of June 24. The top price for the ringside field seats is $15.

COOGAN WINS BOUT OVER BILL M'CANN

New Orleans, June 12.—Mel Coogan of Brooklyn defeated Bill McCann of Cleveland in a grueling 10-round go here last night. Coogan weighed 135 pounds; McCann 132.

Harry Hooper and Eddie Collins Laugh at Father Time

THE mirth that fills the air whenever the Chicago White Sox are around is merely the laughter of Harry Hooper and Eddie Collins at the passing years. These two birds, who were stars when the present young generation of baseball fans were in rompers, go on and on and on, then on some more, and never seem to change a bit.

Eddie Collins

Harry Hooper

Hooper, the greatest right fielder that ever paraded the Fenway regularly, was supposed to be at his best in the days of the champion Red Sox teams. Collins was admitted the king of second basemen away back when Connie Mack had his world beating club.

Yet Harry and Eddie are two of the heroes of the troop of big leaguers. Hooper is the same steady, reliable fielder and consistent hitter. He is clicking the onion for .300, Collins is smacking the marble for .377, leading the league in stolen bases and fielding at least as well as ever. The pair of them had the dope, long before it occurred to

OVATION GIVEN LOU TELLEGEN AT KEITH'S

Lou Tellegen scored an unprecedented success at B. F. Keith's Theatre yesterday afternoon when he appeared in person on the stage and was given a veritable ovation by the large audience that filled the house to the doors. Mr. Tellegen was supported by a company of players in a one-act comedy entitled "The Honeymoon," which was written by Mr. Tellegen himself. The comedy is a clever satire on the foibles of married life and was well received by the audience.

Another feature of the bill was Tom Bryan and Lillian Bedell, well known vaudeville favorites, who were accepted with enthusiasm. They danced and sang and were encored time after time. Their dancing was especially commended by the audience.

LADY ASTOR HITS IGNORANCE IN PARLIAMENT

London, June 11—Lady Astor, the first woman member of the House of Commons, made her maiden speech in that body today. She declared that "The House of Commons is the most ignorant assembly in the world on the subject of drink. Because of the ignorance of members on this subject, the House has been led into passing many foolish measures. Members of Parliament know more about the drink question than they do about any other question that comes before the House."

Lady Astor was supported by a few members, but was opposed by a majority of the House.

Olive Tennyson Foster Off to Europe Again After Trip Around the World

By BETTY ALDEN

HARDLY had Miss Olive Tennyson Foster reached these shores after a lengthy jaunt around the world when the news came that she had sailed from New York on board the Olympic to visit with friends in England.

It was last December that Miss Foster and her parents, the Francis Storer Fosters of Beacon street, set sail on their trip of all the globe. Much of the time was spent in Paris.

For the past few years Miss Foster has been making her home in Gotham where she has a studio on East Sixteenth street, and where she is continuing her musical studies. She has, however, paid frequent visits to Boston.

Mrs. J. Warren Merrill of Marlboro street and the North Shore is one of the many matrons interested in various worthy causes. (Photo copyright by Bachrach.)

MRS. ELIOT WADSWORTH (Mrs. Nancy Whitman Scull), wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, is visiting for a while at Narragansett Pier before coming on for the season to the North Shore, where the Wadsworths have a place in Gloucester.

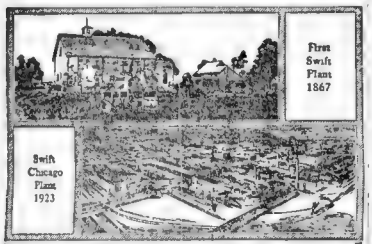
It was last July, in New York, that Eliot Wadsworth, member of the Somerset Club and the Harvard '98 class, married Mrs. Guy H. Scull, widow of Major Scull, and one of his most intimate friends. Appointed to the Assistant Secretary, the latter returned last week from a diplomatic mission on the other side. Later in the month he will act as first marshal of the Harvard Class Day, when he represents the class celebrating its twenty-fifth anniversary.

NOTE that Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Fish have returned to their home in Hamble Hants, England, after a stay of several months in town for the marriage of their daughter, Mrs. Mortimer Van Buren Emmons, and Richard Sears Hooper. The ceremony, taking place a week ago today, drew a host of fashionables to Emmanuel Church.

MR. AND MRS. J. WARREN MERRILL of Marlboro street have been staying for a while at the Essex County Club, prior to opening "Longhurst," their place on Smith's Point, Manchester-by-the-Sea. During the past Winter Mrs. Merrill's name has been linked with various worthy charities.

EXCEEDINGLY smart were the softly-coiling turbans of orchid tulle worn by the bridesmaids attending "Kate" Gilroy at her wedding to Jonathan Brown, Jr. Long sweeping plumes of larkspur blue curled about the turbans, the blue and orchid carrying out color scheme of bridesmaids' frocks, the latter softly trailing and draped affairs of orchid tussion with touches of blue.

Scheduled to arrive on the North Shore by the 20th of the month are Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Foster, their place on Crocker Point, Manchester, being known as "Thorncliffe."



What Co-operation Has Done

Little more than half a century ago, Gustavus F. Swift borrowed $20 from his father and started in the packing business.

Hard work on his part and on the part of the associates whom he presently gathered about him caused the business to grow.

When first incorporated, Swift & Company had six shareholders. The nation was growing and needed meat, and the young company grew also. As more money was needed the business was enlarged by enlisting the co-operation of more shareholders.

The first little plant at Barnstable, Mass., has given way to 23 modern packing plants strategically located. More than 400 branch houses and 600 car routes distribute the meat carried in more than 6,000 refrigerator cars.

Today Swift & Company's service in meat to retailers here and abroad represents the effort of nearly 100,000 people co-operating with their savings or daily toil.

More than 45,000 men and women have co-operated with us by investing their money in shares of Swift & Company.

Nearly 50,000 men and women who work in these offices, plants and branch houses—16,000 of whom also are shareholders—are giving us their co-operation in building the business. They take a just pride in the promptness and precision of its service and in the uniformity and high quality of its products. Swift's Premium Hams and Bacon, "Silverleaf" Brand Pure Lard, Premium Frankfurts and other Swift products are symbols of their hearty co-operation and of their belief in the Company.

MOVIE STAR AT ORPHEUM IN PERSON

The appearance of Leah Baird, one of the bright luminaries of the screen world, upon the stage at the Orpheum Theatre yesterday gave added interest to her own picture, "I Divorce a Failure," which was presented as a joint feature of the program. Miss Baird made an engaging appearance on the stage and had no difficulty in winning her audience. Her popularity had been established by the showing of the picture, which is a story of modern life and which has many thrills. It told the story of a woman who, when civilization had failed to show the true colors of the men figuring in her life, had an opportunity to view them under the stress of hardship and want. She was supported by a good cast.

The vaudeville section of the bill was headed by the Five Kirkemith Sisters, in a symphonic melange of syncopated melody. Other vaude-ville features were Barry and Lan caster, in "I Don't Wanna Dance;" Tom Martin and company, in a comedy playlet, "Jed's Vacation;" Mazon and Brown, in "No Reason Whatsoever," and Penman and Lillian in sensational gymnastics.

Have a Smile With Us

By Dave Sentner

Our idea of a tough deal for a fellow stranded on an island with but one book to read would be a volume of "How to Tastefully Decorate a Home."

The silly season won't be with us until the summer boarders begin staging mock marriages.

A lot of dollar-a-year men have run out of funds and are anxious for another war so that they can get their jobs back.

The only difference between a June bridegroom and a May bridegroom is that the latter comes to the realization of what he has done just one month earlier.

In China a wife never talks to her husband unless he addresses her first. How the women over there must suffer in silence!

Perhaps they call it the matrimonial bark because those aboard it are forever yelping about it.

We'd Like to Know—

Why wives who know their husbands love 'em are insanely jealous when they turn to look at a girl getting aboard a street car?

Why the men most people detest invariably reach their goals before the rest of us?

Why expert accountants make mistakes in filing their own income tax accounts?

Why a man with a splendid fishing outfit will not even get a nibble while the freckle-faced son of a farmer with just a hook and line will catch one fish after another?

Why people continue to have faith in pre-election promises?

Phil Ossify Says

If you want to live long, advises Sarah Bernhardt's doctor, don't eat much sugar. If we ate much sugar at present prices, we couldn't afford to.

Judging by the diamonds some society women wear, we are still living in the stone age.

A beautiful girl doesn't need any brains to capture a man, but a brainy girl often needs a little beauty to do the same thing.

Because of hard times, a lot of women who used to dye their hair to match their gowns, now dye their gowns to match their hair.

A Texas Congressman announces he is going to compile the speeches he made in Washington and distribute them to his constituents. Evidently he doesn't want to be re-elected.

A Society Tragedy

Into the valley of debt
Rode the Four Hundred.
Bills to the right of them,
Bills to the left of them;
Their pocket-books plundered.
In vain poor husbands protest.
In vain they tell their woes.
Their's not to reason why,
Their's but to pay or die;
Their wives must have new clothes.

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

ONE of the favorite sports of sailors on their day off is to go rowing on the lake in the city park.

WHEN a gob joins the navy it's because he has a desire to be on the water, and he's going to have his wish even if he has to get above knots to do it.

IF it wasn't for the lakes in the parks, a sailor wouldn't know how it felt to get seasick.

A GOB usually takes a girl along with him. He has to have somebody to row the boat.

ONE sailor told his sweetheart that he had a sore wrist and couldn't row up hill.

HE told her that as soon as she rowed to the top of the lake, she could rest her oars and coast down.

SHE asked him why he didn't row it, and he said he was a seaman and wasn't supposed to do any work.

WHENEVER you see a sailor rowing his girl around the lake, the chances are he doesn't know her well.

BUT as soon as they get better acquainted, she'll be handling the oars.

ONE sailor went rowing and got all wet and when he got back to his ship, the commanding officer reprimanded him for going near the water.

THE next day he was so anxious to get into the water again, that he asked the captain if he could go wading.

THE skipper told him he couldn't, but he compromised by letting him wash the dishes.

HE enlisted in the navy because he wanted the spray of the water. But later on he figured he'd have been better off if he had joined the fire department.

AS it is now, he has to wait until Winter comes before he can get wet.

HE knows that he'll get plenty of water then, because nobody ever saw a sailor carrying an umbrella.

YOU very seldom hear of a sailor drowning. If the worst comes to the worst, they'll swim.

THE average gob will save himself if it kills him.

MOST seamen like their job so well that whichever they get shore leave, they spend their time rehearsing.

THE flower beds in the city parks are ablaze with tulips and gardenias and the lakes are blooming with sailors.

ONCE OVERS

NOW IS THE TIME FOR YOU TO PLOD AND STUDY.

You have a mighty fine position in life and how you got it is a mystery to you when you realize how you lack some of the greatest essentials in knowledge and education that you really ought to have had.

You have slipped along all these years and side-stepped any position which would bring out your ignorance. You know enough about keeping your mouth shut so as not to expose your crude ideas or your lack of good English.

You have counted on a wise look to help you through.

But gradually a fear is gripping your heart when you are in the company of those who have had greater advantages.

Just supposing certain questions should be asked of you, what would you say?

Many times of late this thought has come to you and with it the conscious feeling that you might have done a few things for yourself if you had been interested enough to study by yourself.

You have put off the thought and you dislike to take your rest and recreation time to pool and study, but it would be better for you if you could get your mind at rest before your thoughts leave deep lines which others can read in your face.

Three Rubber Stocks Are Driven to New 1923 Lows by Cut in Tire Prices

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Have the men of the West more courage than the men of the East? We who live in the East flatter ourselves that the biggest things are done here. Some of them are. Some of them aren't. And a good many of the biggest things done in the East are done by men who hailed from the West. It would be interesting, wouldn't it, to present in this column a table showing the birthplaces of the presidents, of, say, twenty of our largest industrial enterprises? Or of the leading railroads? I think I'll get on the job.

One quality possessed in notable large measure by almost every man who achieves conspicuous success is courage. Somehow westerners give one the impression of having more courage than most easterners. One of the bitter complaints often made against "Wall Street bankers" is that they turn tail and run like cowards whenever trouble blows up. Those bankers call this being "conservative." Their critics call it cowardice.

* * *

I must say that it has been my experience as an interviewer during the last twenty years that the majority of our prominent New York bankers are usually afraid to come out boldly and say what they think. I have found industrial and other leaders much more ready to talk straight from the shoulder, regardless of whether some of the things they said might cause offense in certain directions.

* * *

Chicago has today probably the strongest lot of business executives it has ever had. Most of them are of the new-school type. Many of them are youngish men. They are all doers. They don't pussyfoot. They have the courage of their convictions. They are full of energy and enterprise. They haven't "pasts" which they are fearful will be raked up unless they act and talk warily.

* * *

Within the last week two of those Chicago executives have made speeches which breathed courage, outspokenness and vigor.

Read those ringing sentences from an address by F. Edson White, President of Armour & Company, before the Chicago Association of Commerce:

"There exists in our country a class of short-sighted and long-haired individuals who seem to feel that they were created especially to combat anything that savors of business. The bigger the business the more zeal they show in fighting it. This bunch of misguided zealots has been actually successful in making a great many people believe that big business is a thing to be feared.

"While the government should be earnestly endeavoring to help national and local packers solve the problems of distribution and to improve their ability to serve the public, it is, instead, lending a thoughtful ear to those who decry big business."

"The spectre of monopoly is the bogy man they hold up before a frightened public. To this class of agitators monopoly is the last word in all that is damnable. They ignore facts as to the benefits of big volumes, and blind their eyes completely to the knowledge that in a great many industries that are well managed, and which render good service at narrow margins, one or two of a half-dozen firms handle the bulk of the business.

"There is no monopoly and no danger of monopoly in the meat business. There is no patent rights or trade secrets which prevent any man who wants to from engaging in the handling of meat, and if it ever came to pass that fat profits were being made at the expense of the producing and consuming public those very profits would attract such competition and so divide the business that the evils complained of would be eliminated."

Equally emphatic was Robert W. Stewart, head of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, in addressing a college graduating class, when he said:

"It is the fashion to attack as 'oppressively capitalistic' a system of society and economics which has given to man the greatest comfort and safety he has enjoyed since he first emerged upon the stage of history; and in its place to glorify those systems designed for the reward of mediocrity and incompetence, socialism, syndicalism and communism, all proved failures wherever and whenever in history they have been attempted.

"Mark this: The freedom of capitalism must always be limited by the consumers' veto. It can only succeed by pleasing the ultimate buyer and co-operating with the customer by satisfying his needs."

* * *

Whether we like it or dislike it, America is moving towards bigness in commerce, in all business.

EARNINGS IN CORN PRODUCTS KEEP UP

Earnings of Corn Products Refining Company since March 31 are reported on a par with first quarter, which showed $5.24 earned on $49,784,600 outstanding common, against $5.47 as here in first quarter of 192. Earnings for six months ending June 30, despite usual seasonal falling off in May and June, will show substantial gains over first half of 1922.

CARRIERS HOLD FIRM IN MIXED MARKET

Three rubber stocks — Goodrich common and preferred, Kelly-Springfield Tire—were driven to new 1923 lows in the New York stock market today, suffering by selling influenced by the slash in tire prices. Apex Rubber hit its previous bottom for the year.

Money renewed at 4 per cent. The railroads held firm in a mixed market.

California Petroleum was up better than 2 points. American Ice gained 2¼ at 102.

There were bold or better gains in Southern Pacific and Phillips Petroleum.

Goodrich, U. S. Rubber and Kelly-Springfield all showed recession of 2 or more points. General Electric lost 2 points at 183.

New York Central was active, moving within a fractional range which well illustrated the splits in opinion over its coming dividend action.

Moon Motor was up 1¼ at 28.

Nothnig happened ever night to force the market out of the narrow range in which active stocks fluctuated in the previous session.

Some attention was attracted by developments in the reparations situation, but the effect on the temper of the market appeared to be to await further enlightenment regarding proposed negotiations.

Steelwise conditions are quite satisfactory. The Steel Corporation statement for May indicated continued high rate of operations, estimated million-ton bookings of new business, which came within 300,000 tons of total shipments, being made during a period which developed some cautiousness on the part of buyers.

During the past fortnight steel business has had a revival as in the copper market, and, barring a general slowing up in business, June should be a big month for the industry.

Replies to Investors

(Send inquiries on investments to Frank H. Melson, Financial Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass. Enclose stamped and self-addressed envelope for reply.)

To B. B. M., Somerville.—You will find the high and low prices for the current year of all the stocks about which you inquire in the Boston American's stocks table.

Condensed analysis you request follows:

Nonquit Spinning Co.—Incorporated in Massachusetts. Manufactures combed yarns. Equipment, 186,000 spindles. Capital, $4,800,000 authorized from $2,400,000 in 1920 by payment of a 100 per cent. stock dividend. Dividends payable quarterly May 1st, Nov. 1st. Recent payments as follows: 1918—16 per cent.; 1919—16 per cent.; 1920—32 per cent.; 1921 —5 per cent.; 1922—4 per cent.; Feb., 1923—1½ per cent.

"PANHANDLE" GENERAL 38.

To N. S. P., King street.—The Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Company of Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Cleveland & St. Louis, and it has done so ever since it assumed operation of the lines. The "Panhandle" owns over 1,600 miles of main line. Its general 5s, 1976, outstanding in the amount $20,000,000, are a lien on all property, subject to prior liens for which bonds have been reserved. The bonds were issued in exchange for minority stock of the road in denominations of $500 and $1,000, they are non-redeemable to maturity. They yield 5.29 per cent. interest June and December.

PERE MARQUETTE.

To F. L., Washington street North.—The strength of Pere Marquette common in recent months is in part a reflection of the general belief that earnings this year will total at least two and one-half times the $4 annual rate.

April gross was $4,626,000, against $3,013,000. The corresponding month last year. Net operating income in April was $681,000, against $322,000 in April a year ago. For the first four months of 1923 Pere Marquette showed gross at $14,368,000 against $11,502,000 in the corresponding period last year, while net at $2,061,000 compares with $1,466,000 reported in the first four months of 1922.

In the first four months of 1922 Pere Marquette reported about 23 per cent. of the year's net operating income. If 24 per cent. of the 1923 total has already been shown, the figure for the full year will approximate $8,700,000. Adding other income of $600,000 will bring gross income to $8,809,000, and deducting rents, interest, etc., would leave net income of $2,500,000. After dividends on the prior preferred and preferred stocks, the balance available for the common would amount to $4,618,000, or the equivalent of better than $10 a share on the 450,000 shares outstanding.

In 1922 Pere Marquette earned $6.43 a share for the common; in 1921 net was equal to $4.28 a share, a deficit of $1,429,000 was reported in 1920 after preferred dividends, and in 1919 common earnings were equal to $8.18 a share.

After holding firm, in direct contrast to the general commodity trend during the last two months, wool is beginning to show a tendency towards lower prices.

So far it is confined almost wholly to the West, where the new domestic clip is now being shorn. When the clip was first offered sales were made ranging from 15 per cent. to 50 per cent. above those of a year ago.

Now the dealer's appetite for new wool appears to be appeased and buyers have dropped their limits. The last 400,000 pounds sold in this market with prices off a cent or two a pound.

Better Postal Savings Bank

It Would Mean Greater Prosperity

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

The savings banks are raising their rate to 4½ per cent. Why doesn't the United States Postal Savings Bank set the example?

If the United States Postal Savings Bank would make it easy instead of difficult for depositors to deal with the United States Postal and pay a decent rate of interest, it would keep in this country hundreds of millions sent abroad. It would save millions of little people from being robbed by the get-rich-quick vultures, and the Postal Savings Bank deposits would enable the country to finance itself with its own savings instead of borrowing at the banks.

The banks would not suffer, for the deposits, taken in drops by the government, would go into the banks in great lumps. And banks prosper where the country in general prospers.

Poor Million Dollar Incomes

They're Fading Away

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

In 1922, THIRTY-THREE American citizens told the government they had a million a year income or more and paid income tax accordingly. This year, twelve of them have disappeared and only twenty-one report an income of one million or more.

Some perhaps have had a hard year and some others have learned how to dodge the income tax. A million a year is no longer a big income in the United States. Perhaps some don't know how to add up very well.

And what about the really big incomes of the United States that run up to many millions? The government, it seems, never heard of them. The avoidance of taxes can be arranged within the law, of course.

Corporations pay only 12½ per cent. income tax. The wise man, with a great deal of money, keeps it INSIDE OF A CORPORATION, reinvesting it INSIDE of the corporation, never allowing the income to be paid to himself, which would mean giving half of it to the government, or enduring a painful struggle with conscience.

Women and U. S. District Attorney Harris

Some of the leading women of Massachusetts have asked Governor Cox and the State government to devise ways and means to enforce the prohibition law more effectively and to offset the damage done by the action of Governor Smith of New York in withdrawing State aid from the officers of the Federal government engaged in the enforcement of the prohibition law in New York.

Some of our most enlightened and public-spirited women have joined in the appeal to make good prohibition. They urged the abandonment of fines for the violation of the prohibition law by bootleggers and rum-runners, and insist that the severer penalty of imprisonment be imposed.

Mrs. William Tilton told the Governor that "when Judge Morris of New Hampshire was sitting in the Federal Court in Boston he gave five jail sentences, whereupon the manager of a large bootlegging syndicate said to a Federal officer that Judge Morris had not only raised the price of moonshine, but had demoralized the whole illicit trade, because 'we can hire selling agents who will risk fines for us, but we cannot hire agents who will go to jail for us.'"

We call this to the attention of the United States District Attorney Harris, and we say to him that if the story as reported in the news columns of the Boston American the other day, concerning the facts relating to the fine imposed upon Costello and his associates, is true, he will do well to listen to the opinion of a body of women who represent as many voters as any representative body of men.

Prohibition can be enforced if gentlemen like Mr. Harris mean business and want really to enforce it. It cannot be enforced if those whose duty it is to enforce it do not try to enforce it.

It does not tend to suppress illicit liquor traffic to impose an insignificant fine which may be charged to profit and loss in the rare cases of detection and conviction. That sort of thing encourages the liquor traffic, but as the bootlegger said about Judge Morris' jail sentences, while men will pay fines when it is profitable to do so, they will not go to prison.

O'Brien's Ball Game

District Attorney O'Brien visited Deer Island the other day with the Grand Jury. There they played a game of baseball with a team organized by the prisoners. Mr. O'Brien pitched for the Grand Jury team and they were beaten by the prisoners, 7-3.

This is rather a remarkable spectacle—the public prosecutor of the county and the Grand Jury playing baseball with convicted men. We suppose there are those who will think that this is going too far. We do not see it in that light, at all.

The first thing that ought to be impressed upon any transgressor is that the State and the citizens of the State entertain no bitterness toward them when punishing them, but always wish them well; and that punishment is a necessary evil meted out to them regretfully.

Moreover, it is important that the State should do everything it can to re-establish the self-respect of those whom it has been obliged to punish by incarceration. Self-respect is a great protector of character. It probably keeps more of us on the straight and narrow path than the fear of the law.

In the life of Christ and of the great Christian leaders and in the lives of the great leaders of all the great religions, many precedents can be found for the district attorney's ball game.

We like the kind of spirit which inspired it and carried it through.

MUSSOLINI BELIEVES IN STARS

PARIS, June 12.—The most superstitious ruler in Europe is Premier Benito Mussolini, according to paragraphs published in the French press.

Like Wallenstein, who consulted the astrologer Zeno, Dictator Mussolini pays regular visits to an astrologer named Rosconi at Milan.

Rosconi leapt into Italian fame when in 1918, a simple private in the French army, he predicted that the war would end on the day it did end—November 11.

Postal Clerks' Pay

Editor Boston American:

Recently Secretary Mellon stated that $2,000 per year was the least an American family could live on, yet the maximum the postoffice clerks and letter carriers get is $1,800 per year.

The only time a postoffice clerk is promoted above $1,800 per year (and that increase isn't much) is when the postoffice where he is employed increases its business over a certain amount. The postoffice clerk selected for that small increase can be any clerk the postmaster sees fit to choose. Length of service, ability, etc., don't make much difference.

How about a good raise in salary for the postal employes? Letter carriers are compelled to buy their own uniforms and shoes.

Out of the postoffice employe's salary he is supposed to pay outrageous rents, big taxes, buy a house, support his wife, educate his children, save for old age, keep out of the poorhouse, etc. How can it be done?

The government should give their real workers enough to live decently on.

EX-POSTOFFICE CLERK.

Need Clothes Badly

Editor Helping Hand:

My husband has not been working for some time, as a result of an injury to his spine. We have had to dig and scrape as hard as we could to get food, not to mention clothes. Is there any kind reader who has discarded clothing for a seven-months-old baby, a girl 2½ years old, and for myself, size 38? I would be very grateful for anything.

MRS. M. C. 4.

Extremely Grateful

Editor Helping Hand:

I wish to acknowledge receipt of blouses sent me by J. E. A., and I am extremely grateful for them. I wish also to thank the Helping Hand, as it was through the generosity of your column that I was able to receive this help.

MRS. C. E. H.

You have been sent the address of another reader who has clothes for your husband, and there may be others with clothes for yourself and the other children.

Poor Boy Wants Books

Editor Helping Hand:

I would be very grateful for the Alger books that were mentioned in yesterday's paper. My father is dead, and we are poor. I would like some books very much.

J. N.

M. E. B., who offered the books, will be put in touch with you.

Boy Needs Pants

Editor Helping Hand:

Is there some lady who would give my mother some pieces of cloth to make me some blouses? I have no waists or pants for school. I must go to school all Summer, because I had an abscess in my nose, and it kept me back. My daddy broke his arm, and he can't work. I am thirteen years old and have two sisters and three brothers, and we have a hard time. Hope to hear from you soon. My mother can sew anything.

J. K. 2.

Clothes for Schoolgirl

Editor Helping Hand:

Please send me the address of the fourteen-year-old schoolgirl, as I think I can furnish her with a few things. I have also a pair of high black shoes, size 2½ B, worn about six times; a pair of brown pumps, size 3 C, some waists, size 40; green suit, size 40; several black skirts and dressing sacques, also size 40. Please send addresses of those who can use them.

G. M. D.

Many thanks. You have been sent the address of Miss D. K., the schoolgirl, and of Mrs. H. G. V., who would greatly appreciate the clothes size 40 you mention. Your offer of shoes will be held for replies.

Aid for C. H.

Please send the address of C. H., as I will try to help her a little. I still have two kittens that I will give to anyone who will take good care of them.

M. E. T.

Thanks From Mrs. G. H. P. 2

Editor Helping Hand:

I want to thank you a thousand times and more for the good you have done me in getting me some little things for my two children. F. E. sent five wash suits for my boy four, and you may bet I was glad to get them. Mrs. E. C. sent a box of lovely things for my girl two years old—stockings, bloomer dresses, a sweater and shoes—and a nice letter. She sent me such nice things, too. If you could get me a few things for my girl eleven or twelve I would be so glad.

MRS. G. H. P. 2.

Only one or two of those thanks belong to us—the rest to F. E. and Mrs. E. C.

Please send the address of Mrs. E. G. 2. My husband has a suit of clothes which he would be glad to give her husband. I have a child's nice sled, which I would be glad to give some little boy who hasn't one for next Winter. Would have to ask that the sled be called for (Boston), as I have no way of sending it.

MRS. H. C. W.

Thank you. You have been sent Mrs. E. G. 2's address, and I am sure there is some unfortunate youngster who would be glad to have a sled.

Shoes to Give

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a pair of white canvas oxfords, almost new, size 3 C, low heel, broad toe, I would like to give to some woman or girl who could use them. Will send by parcel post.

E. M. P.

Thank you. Your offer will be held for replies.

MRS. R. L. S.

Many thanks. You have been put in touch with Mrs. A. B., who is greatly in need of such things as you mention.

Doing Good Work

Editor Helping Hand:

Will you please send me the name of some worthy family, as I have some more things which I would like to give? I have a very pretty dark gray suit for a girl about fourteen or fifteen years of age, and I know some girl would appreciate it; also two Winter coats which could be held over until next Winter, and I could get some baby clothes, as there are lots of girls here in the office who have lots of things they could bring in. I have received many lovely letters from "Anna," also one from Mrs. S. of Jamaica Plain, both names which you sent me. I really wish I could have done more for them, but realize there are others who need help, too.

MISS D. B.

Many thanks for this and your other kind offers in the past. You have been sent the address of Mrs. C. E. P., who has a girl fourteen in need of clothes, and of Mrs. B. P., who has a very small baby (one or two weeks) in need of clothing.

HISTORY WARNS US TO STICK TO OUR KNITTING

By Herbert Kaufman.

EVERY race in Europe is a special pleader when asking us to participate in control of foreign affairs. France, traditional foe of England, secretly believes that it can re-excite Anglo-American animosities and at the propitious moment win us to her way of thinking.

Britain is confident that blood ties will hold the two great Anglo-Saxon people together through all crises.

Italy, Belgium and the Balkans feel sure that they can assert greater freedom of action if a territorially disinterested country can be influenced to umpire continental intrigues.

The league isn't working, because overseas folk have no intention of binding themselves to keep the peace while the most powerful neutral on earth remains an independent factor.

So long as the United States retains that independence bullies and boundary-breakers will walk more warily.

We know the least of the illicit understandings which mark and stack decks yonder, but may rest assured that wolves and foxes run true to breed. National characteristics don't change over night. History warns us to stick to our knitting.

A Free Lance of Justice.

England's interests are mainly foreign, her problems and obligations universal. Excepting the Philippines and a few specks in the Caribbean, Old Glory has no outside concerns.

France is the legatee of implacable hates and insistent revenges—a solitaire player and incurable Chauvinist.

The third republic, like its futile predecessors, is a political stop-gap—an expedient cloak for unregenerated monarchism. The thwarted hopes of Napoleon will yet be served.

This is an unfinished land. Theirs are decadent and exhausted realms.

We are plain speakers. They are adepts in indirection, subterfuge and evasion.

We have an Asiatic exclusion policy, uncompromised by Asiatic colonies and allies, and a Monroe Doctrine which would be endangered by the surrender of present self-sufficiency.

We do not wage wars for profit, and every partner with whom we should be associated yonder covets some neighbor's acres and aspires for his humiliation.

Limited experience has failed to produce American statesmen or financiers competent to cope with the conscienceless codes and shrewd wits to be pitted against our amateur envoys. We don't belong in that crowd and can gain nothing from destructive alliances which cannot more easily and honorably be obtained as free lances of justice and sole arbiters of conscience.

Boycott for Buckos.

Roosevelt needed no World Court to block trouble at Agadir. His warning that America would throw its resources in the balance against the author of the first overt act promptly settled that row.

A great war couldn't be waged then without the use of our larders, factories and funds. Still less today.

Mark can't ride far without first filling pockets and bread boxes, and we run the only shop and bank big enough to finance and provender a modern army.

Commitments aren't necessary if we aspire to preserve general amity. Boycott's the cure for buckos.

Let's keep four thousand miles away from foreign feuds. Five centuries have elapsed since Castile and Aragon drove the Moors across the straits, and Spain and Morocco are still tearing at each other's throats.

Bulgaria, following threats to seize an ungranted Aegean port, overthrows Stamboulisky, imprisons his Cabinet and puts a bunch of sabre-rattlers into the saddle.

Cuno and Poincare haven't begun to compose differences, and Lausanne wastes another week wrangling with the Turk.

An extra voice added to transatlantic quarrels won't decide them. Europe is determined to settle its grudges. The time is not ripe for intervention while bad blood taints diplomacy.

Gold Bricks and Green Goods

Sundry gentlemen have been finding too much money in the streets of New York—especially around Broad and Wall.

A dozen curb concerns are in the hands of receivers, and several of them under indictment for bucketing. Their swag is estimated at millions.

The stock market is undergoing a cleanup—so are thousands of sapheads. The only people who can afford to speculate are those with far more money than they need, and men who have that much are far too wise to gamble. Instead, they rig the games at which fools go broke.

Ex-Representative Herrick continues to pursue notoriety and the ladies.

He now sues his stenographer for breach of promise and figures that $50,000 will just about heal his injured heart. You can bet a million to a penny that he won't get a red cent—and that's no gamble.

Democracy can't critiicize the quality of recent service when it picks such legislative timber. Some constituencies are equally poor judges of intelligence and investments.

Some Recent Chicks of Imagination.

California orange growers install central heating systems throughout their groves and laugh at frosts. The proverbial ounce of prevention. One saved crop will more than pay for furnace and radiators.

Later on geyser heat will be piped into the orchards. Watch Southern Pacific dividends jump when its engineers put subterranean steam on the job.

Volcanic areas have been under our nose for aeons and ingenuity has just begun to sense the Goleondas they hold.

Selma, California, makes its debut in the news by accepting dead rats as tickets of admission to motion picture theatres. Every youngster in town is playing Pied Piper. Watch the rodents scatter when the idea spreads.

If a cup of flies or a pint of caterpillars become open sesames to photoplays, other pests will begin to vanish, too.

Louis Brennan, too busy to notice he's past seventy, builds a flying machine which goes up like an elevator. Imagination's latest chick is somewhat weak-winged, but it at least demonstrates practicability.

The Brennan helicopter rises twenty feet and stays afloat nineteen minutes with passengers and a thousand pounds of freight.

A decade from now you'll jump into one of its refined successors, take off and land on your house roof, and joy-ride with wild geese.
